BONES OF FALSE BOOMS STREW BUSINESS TRAIL

Recovery Held Back 9 Years; Why?

(This is the first of a series of articles by Howard Wood, financial editor of The Tribune, on the factors which prevent a genuine business recovery. A second article will appear soon.)

BY HOWARD WOOD.

What is holding business back?

The right answer to that question would do much to solve the serious ills that beset the nation today. There have been many wrong answers and many unfortunate results from experiments based on those wrong answers.

It is obvious that something is holding business back. It has been held back for nine years—the longest depression in the history of the United States. During those nine years there have been several false starts—several times when genuine recovery seemed to have begun. But each time the boomlet died in infancy. "Recovery" had been built on an unsound foundation.

Number of Idle a Gauge.

Figures show that the present "recession" is not a new depression, but a continuation of the old one that began in 1929. Two important yardsticks of business are: [1] the number of idle workers and [2] the actual volume of goods produced by factories. A study of these yardsticks and others over the last nine years discloses that business in the United States during that period has never even closely approached a condition which might be regarded as "normal."

When millions of able bodied workers are out of jobs, in addition to other millions employed on "make work" projects financed by borrowed billions which must be paid back by the taxpayers, the state of business can hardly be regarded as normal. During the last nine years there has been no time when there has not been this tremendous lack of employment.

The Marks of a Depression.

Likewise when the nation's factories as a whole do not have enough orders to operate at more than a small fraction of their capacity, when the railroads run short freight trains, and when builders have few buildings to build there is depression.

There have been times during the last nine years when certain industries have enjoyed a temporary burst of prosperity. The so-called "consumers goods' industries experienced such a spurt in 1936. "Pump priming"—the pouring out by the government of borrowed billions—helped them.

Consumers goods factories make such things as food, clothing, and automobiles—the things that people buy for their own use and quickly consume or wear out. Such factories benefit immediately when the government hands out money because a dollar in the hands of the project worker or relief "client" buys as much of that kind of goods as does a dollar earned in regular work.

There's a Catch in It.

The trouble comes when the government stops priming the pump. Sales drop. Workers lose their jobs. Depression sets in again.

This so-called "pump priming" can be repeated, but history shows that the results are always the same. Some degree of temporary prosperity is created, but the effect wears off when the spending of government money stops.

If it is done too many times or is carried on too long nothing can prevent national bankruptcy, because sooner or later the government inflates the supply of money—either currency or bank deposits—to a point where money itself loses value. It takes more and more money to buy a pair of shoes or a ton of coal. When the effects of inflation begin to show in this way it is usually too late to stop the process of inflation.

But even "pump priming" with the borrowed billions has not stimulated all business. The "heavy" or "producers goods" industries as a whole have operated during the last few years at a rate far below the operating rate of the "consumers goods" industries.

Heavy Industries Defined.

O'DANIEL BEATS ELEVEN IN DIZZY PRIMARY RACE

Pledges to Plow Up Politicians.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on back page.)

Fort Worth, Tex., July 24.—[Special.]—A Yankee will be the next governor of Texas. Returns from yesterday's primary showed tonight that W. Lee O'Daniel received a clear majority over eleven other candidates for the Democratic nomination. In Texas the Democratic nomination is equivalent to election.

Paul J. Kilday. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

In the congressional elections Representative Maury Maverick of San Antonio was defeated. W. D. MacFarlane, like Maverick called "my friend" by President Roosevelt on his recent western stumping tour, was 2,500 votes behind his rival, but had a chance to win. Maverick, with only a few votes uncounted, lost the nomination to Paul Kilday, a San Antonio attorney.

Great Political Surprise.

Nomination of O'Daniel for the governorship gave Texans one of the greatest political surprises in years. Rarely does a candidate receive a majority on the first ballot and a runoff primary between the two highest usually is necessary to decide the winner.

O'Daniel is a native of Ohio, the grandson of a union soldier in the civil war. A stranger to politics until six weeks ago he won his nomination on a platform that included the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule, ridicule of professional politicians, promise of a business administration and more liberal pensions for the aged. On the radio and at each stop on his speaking tour he first got the crowd with hillbilly music, then told his political story.

Conducting his campaign along lines that made his flour jobbing business a great success, O'Daniel, a native of Malta, O., who was reared on a Kansas farm, told his story simply. He spoke the language of the farmer and the voters liked it. Actually, it was the people who listened to his flour advertising radio programs who got him into the race for governor.

58,000 Urged Him to Run.

On the air one night with his program, he mentioned that some friends had urged him to run for governor. He asked his listeners what they thought about the idea and asked for postal card expressions. Fifty-eight thousand persons wrote him to make the race.

O'Daniel came to Fort Worth in 1925 as sales manager for a flour company. A short time later he founded his own jobbing house which was successful from the start. He is a former president of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce.

Now 46 years old, O'Daniel is a family man who devotes much of his time to the Christian church and the Masonic bodies. Throughout his amazing campaign he was assisted by Mrs. O'Daniel, who remained at home and conducted his headquarters with their daughter, Molly, and by his sons, Pat and Mike, who accompanied him on tour as members of his hillbilly band. His hobbies are song and poetry writing. For his songs he composed both words and music.

Pastor Prays for His Success.

Prayer service was conducted in the O'Daniel home last night when early returns began to show him leading the race. The family occupied their usual places in church this morning and heard the pastor pray for his success.

When the state election bureau in nearby Dallas was closed tonight O'Daniel had 403,582 votes; Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the interstate oil pact commission, had 161,993; William McCraw, attorney general, had 107,309, and Tom Hunter, who never before polled less than 200,000 votes,

Wife Scores as a Pinch Hitter for Chandler

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on back page.)

Frankfort, Ky., July 24.—[Special.]—Gov. A. B. [Happy] Chandler is ill and his wife is pinchhitting for him in the final weeks of his campaign.

"Happy won't promise to be Santa Claus, but he'll do what is right," Mrs. Mildred Chandler, who is in her middle thirties, tells her political audiences.

Her husband seeks the Democratic nomination for United States senator. He is opposing Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, whose reëlection President Roosevelt asked two weeks ago when he stopped in Kentucky on his western stumping tour.

Wife Takes Over Tour.

The Kentucky primary election is on Aug. 6. Last week Gov. Chandler became ill and was ordered to bed. Speaking engagements had been made weeks in advance. One of the most important was yesterday, when he was to talk to workmen in several Louisville factories. Happy couldn't make the trip so his wife took over his campaign dates.

Dressed smartly in a summer frock, her blonde hair shining beneath a big straw hat, Mrs. Chandler was greeted with enthusiasm. Appearing before several hundred workmen in the Louisville and Nashville railroad company's shops, Mrs. Chandler informed them that her father was a railroad man for forty years. She was greeted with cheers.

It was to these workmen and others before whom she appeared during the day that she said that Happy didn't promise to be Santa Claus.

"Governor Knows," She Says.

"The governor knows," she said, "that old age pensioners should receive more money, and he also knows that the taxpayers would have to pay the bill. He knows that we can't afford to do any better for them right now."

Mrs. Chandler was Mildred Watkins of Keysville, Va. She came to Kentucky as a teacher of music at Margaret college, a private school for girls, in Versailles.

In 1924 Happy Chandler, a native of Corydon, Henderson county, arrived in Versailles to open a law office. To add to his income, Happy also coached the Versailles High school football team. He took an active part in the Episcopal church affairs and eventually met his wife, also an Episcopalian, through their mutual fondness for music.

A year later Happy Chandler and the music teacher were married. She had a daughter by a previous marriage and Happy adopted her. She is Marcella, 16 years old. The Chandlers have three other children, Mildred, 10 years old; Albert B. Jr., 8 years old, and Daniel T., 5 years old.

SURVEY REVEALS 28 WAYS TO GET OUT OF KANSAS STATE PRISON

Washington, D. C., July 24.—(AP)—The state prison at Lansing, Kas., has only one way for prisoners to get in, but 28 ways for them to get out, the prison industries reorganization administration reported today.

Criticizing the prison in a general report on Kansas penal institutions, the agency said additions had been tacked on to the original unit. As a result, the record said, the institution now has:

Five openings in the main wall, twelve openings in the outer walls, nine gates in the outer fence, and two pedestrian and vehicular gates.

STORM PERILS 4 TRYING TO SCALE 6,300 FOOT WALL

GENEVA, July 24.—A snowstorm tonight hid the fate of four mountain climbers—the team of Harrer and Kastarek from Austria and Verg and Heckmaier from Munich—who are attempting to scale the almost straight face of the 6,300 foot Eigerwand in the Jungfrau Alps.

Watchers at Kleine Scheidegg using powerful telescopes last saw that the four had reached a point about 500 feet from the top.

Today clouds swathed the Eigerwand—"the wall of the ogre." Snow fell heavily even to low levels of the mountains. It appeared that the four would have to spend a night in freezing temperature and the weather outlook for tomorrow is for more storms. The Eigerwand has claimed the lives of nine Alpinists in the last few summers.

3 Bears Prove You Can't Rely on a Woman

BY MARCIA WINN.

Had Schopenhauer, that arch cynic, been at the Chicago Zoölogical park in Brookfield yesterday, he would have emitted a gruff "I told you so" at the antics of the female Kodiak bears.

Long ago Mr. Schopenhauer took many words to say that you could never depend on women, but the zoo officials disagreed. In their careful preparations to move six great tawny Kodiak bears from their old grotto to a luxurious new Bear Island, everything hinged on the female of the species.

Three of the zoo's Kodiaks are females. Like the three bears of the nursery tale, they are known as the Big, Middle Size, and Baby bears. Since their arrival at Brookfield five years ago, they have seemed gentle, sweet, and docile.

Utilize Feminine Lure.

Moreover, whenever one of them moved, a male trailed closely behind.

Thus, Director Edward H. Bean thought to facilitate moving day. He would coax the females, one by one, into the great steel crate in which they were to be transported. And where they went the males went.

As lure he placed an enticing mess of cod liver oil, fresh fish, peanuts, milk, and molasses in the steel crate.

But the females upset the calculations. Big Bear took one sniff and slouched away. Middle Size lumbered as far as the subterranean retiring den, into which the crate protruded, before backing out. Baby Bear did nothing.

Males Take the Bait.

The males, on the other hand, advanced boldly, ignoring their consorts. One by one they were transported to the new island home in which they will be liberated at 3 p. m. today in a formal ceremony.

If the females still are stubborn, they'll simply miss all that. They'll miss, too, the pleasures of a new maternity ward built for them alone.

"I wouldn't say the females are more wily than the males," Assistant Director Robert Bean said, "but that they are less stupid. You can't fool them with cod liver oil. We'll have to rely on their loneliness."

Stunting Plane Blows Up at Colombia Fete

BOGOTA, Colombia, July 24.—(AP)—At least thirty-four persons were killed and 150 injured today when a plane doing daring stunts crashed into part of a crowd of 50,000 watching inauguration of Bogota's great new Campo de Marte, a field designed for military purposes.

Arrow locates scene of Colombia plane disaster.

The plane, flown by Lieut. Abadia, swooped down to within ninety feet of the ground and attempted to pass between two grandstands.

A wing tip struck a stand occupied by the diplomatic corps. Careening wildly, the plane brushed another stand from which President Alfonso Lopez and President-elect Eduardo Santos, along with sports delegations from Peru, Bolivia, Ecuador, and Venezuela to the Bolivar games, were watching the air and land military review.

Slices Through Shrieking Crowd.

Twisting in midair, the plane crashed to the earth and sliced through a shrieking crowd of bystanders. Many ran, but did not have time to escape. Heads were decapitated by the whirling propellers and flying fragments.

The plane's gasoline tanks exploded and the plane caught fire. The pilot's body was destroyed by the flames. Burning gasoline was thrown over some of the injured as they lay shrieking in desperation and pain.

President Lopez and President-elect Santos escaped injury by a close margin, as the plane crashed but a few feet from their grandstand.

Only one member of the diplomatic corps was injured by fragments of the ship when it flew apart. She was the wife of the Japanese chargé d'affaires. Isabel Paske-Smith, daughter of the British minister, however, had a narrow escape from flying pieces of the plane.

21 Victims Identified.

Among the identified victims were eight women, and 13 men, including a soldier.

Badly burned and mangled bodies, with arms and legs severed, not only made identification slow but also made the task of determining the number of dead and injured difficult.

Doctors estimated the death toll would total more than fifty. Many injured were expected to die during the night.

The tragedy came on the 155th anniversary of the birth of Simon Bolivar, the soldier and statesman in South America's 19th century struggle for independence. The Bolivar games are to be held in Bogota in August.

CHALLENGE PUT TO LABOR BOARD ON FREE SPEECH

Congressman Backs Right to Protest.

Allegan, Mich., July 24.—[Special.]—A letter citing constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech and of the press will be sent tomorrow to the National Labor Relations board in Washington by Representative Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.].

The letter, made public today by Representative Hoffman at his home in Allegan, recalled that the labor board recently declared that the circulation of a house speech by Hoffman constituted an unfair labor practice under the Wagner labor law.

In the speech, delivered June 1, 1937, Hoffman declared that known communists were active in the Committee for Industrial Organization and denounced C. I. O. sitdown strikes as communistic methods.

Speech Is Republished.

"This speech," Hoffman's letter said, "was republished, with illustrations, by the Constitutional Educational league of New Haven, Conn.

"Last week the press carried the information that the labor board recently held that the circulation by an employé of the Muskin Shoe company, Westminster, Md., of this republished speech on company time and company property was an unfair labor practice as defined by the Wagner act.

"I am now offering, and intend to continue to offer, to furnish to any and all interested persons, including employés, employers, or others, copies of this address for circulation at the actual cost of printing, and to recommend that employés might well read this address before joining the C. I. O.

Seeks Source of Power.

"As I wish to avoid disobeying any lawful order of any court or board, will you kindly advise by what authority and under what provision of law your board assumes the power to suppress this argument against communists and communistic activities in the field of labor?

"The first amendment to the federal constitution expressly provides that congress shall make no laws abridging the freedom of speech or of the press.

"Has the board held that either the board or congress has the right to prevent an employer from presenting to his employés a statement of fact, showing that a union urging employés to join is in fact controled by communists or by those who are criminals or have been engaged in criminal activities?

Views Effect on Papers.

"Would it be a violation of the Wagner act for me to mail to employés where a strike is in progress copies of this speech?"

Commenting on the letter, Representative Hoffman said that the Maryland ruling would preclude the distribution of newspapers containing news items or editorials critical of any organization or of activities of the labor board.

A. F. OF L. ACCUSES BOARD

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 24.—[Special.]—The National Labor Relations board, already on the defensive in the courts, found itself under fire from another quarter today.

John L. Lewis as he passed through Chicago.

In terms rivaling the criticism of the board by employers, the American Federation of Labor accused the three board members of violating judicial impartiality in order to promote the interests of John L. Lewis' radical Committee for Industrial Organization.

The attack on the board was contained in an editorial in the federation's organ, the American Federationist, entitled "Shall Government Control Unionism?"

Scores Act's Administration.

Although the federation was chiefly responsible for the enactment of the national labor relations act, it now complains that the administration of the act by the labor board and the recognition given the C. I. O. by other agencies of the government constitute union development under government patronage.

This broadside followed hard upon the decision of the federal Circuit court in Chicago last Friday invalidating the board's ruling in favor of the sitdown strikers at the Fansteel plant in North Chicago. The day previous on trial before the board was its examiner, Edward Grandison Smith, for arbitrarily excluding the Weirton Steel company's attorney, Clyde A. Armstrong, from the hearing of C. I. O. charges against that corporation. The board took its examiner's conduct under advisement.

Board in Hot Water.

For several weeks the board has been in hot water as a result of the Supreme court decision in the Kansas City stockyards case that commission men were the victims of unfair procedure by the secretary of agriculture.

The board tacitly admitted that it likewise had been guilty of similar unfair procedure in cases against Henry Ford, the Republic Steel corporation, and several other concerns and hastened to withdraw its orders and grant the defendants the rights they had been denied.

The board ran into another storm when it ruled in the case of the Muskin Shoe company of Westminster, Md., that distribution of copies of an anti-C. I. O. speech by Representative Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.] constituted an unfair labor practice. Critics of the administration cried dictatorship and argued that proceeding on this line the Roosevelt administration could pass a law prohibiting circulation of propaganda to dissuade persons from joining the Democratic party.

Unfair Practices Listed.

A published collation of labor board decisions showed that, according to the board, an employer commits an unfair labor practice when during a strike he publishes a notice on his bulletin board criticizing the board's agents. He is barred from referring to the leaders of the strike as "outside agitators," "radicals," "troublemakers," "racketeers," "corrupt," or using any other term that might bring discredit upon the union. The employer can take no part in the formation of "back to work," "loyalty," "law and order" movements or any type of program that looks toward a reopening of the plant without capitulation to the strikers.

He must not say that he will not sign a contract with a union or enunciate any policy that might clearly show his preference not to deal with the union staging the strike.

Threats to Move Barred.

He must not threaten to move his plant or hint its closing, since that might intimidate the strikers.

He must not advise his employés that it might be possible for them to organize a union of their own, independent of any national union.

He can hardly bargain or confer with any independent group of employés without giving rise to the charge that such an organization is company dominated and thus illegal.

It is not even clear that an employer has the right to announce to employés an intention to reopen the plant and invite employés back to work.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent asked the board to point out any respect in which this analysis of its decisions was incorrect. The board replied it was impossible to do so categorically.

In its editorial the Federation of Labor observed philosophically that sometimes "institutions develop very differently from what was intended through the original plan." Of this phenomenon the federation regards the labor board a conspicuous example.

"The law was intended," the editorial continued, "to free workers from those unfair practices of employers which made it impossible for them to organize in their own unions for purposes of collective bargaining.

Free Bargaining Urged.

"Labor has always held that if the opportunity to organize were afforded workers would be able to take care of their own problems through collective bargaining and other union activities. Labor wants to be free. One of the most difficult problems a democracy has to solve is that of maintaining freedom for all against the designs or good intentions of some.

"In the case of the national labor relations act the purpose was only to assure workers the opportunity for freedom. There are, however, connected with the administration of the law persons who have in mind results widely different from merely assuring labor the right to membership in unions of their own choosing.

"Instead of performing their function with nice discrimination between official duty and personal inclination, they have interpreted their duty to further a dual union organization as against the established organization in the unfortunate union conflict into which we have been precipitated.

Favoritism Is Charged.

"The board was freed from all conciliation functions so that it might administer only the right of labor to organize freely. It is a commentary on the failure of the board to maintain a judicial attitude that the A. F. of L. should feel that the act is administered in a way to promote the committee which seeks to set up a dual labor movement despite all the social and economic waste which dualism involves.

"The board has given an insurgent group the rights of belligerents—a privilege accorded in international affairs only after careful deliberation and full consideration of its grave consequences. Every agency of government that gives status to the C. I. O. gives the same recognition.

"Surely this is not freedom for workers to choose their own unions and representatives for collective bargaining, but union development under government patronage."

Rebels Make Surprise Drive

(Story in adjoining column.)

A surprise rebel drive in western Spain yesterday had gained 3,125 square miles of territory and 23 towns, among them the important centers, Don Benito, Castuera, and Campanario. On the eastern front the rebels smashed through two lines of loyalist trenches protecting Viver and Segorbe. The rebels also were massing troops for a drive on northern Catalonia.

STRIKERS RETURN TODAY TO JOBS IN N. CHICAGO PLANT

Employés of the Chicago Hardware Foundry company in North Chicago will return to work today after a C. I. O. strike which has brought them payless pay days since June 6. The strike was settled Saturday after the workers had lost $75,000 in wages.

J. A. De Celle, plant superintendent, prepared the plant for operation yesterday with three assistants and twenty-five of the workers who came to help. Officials said almost 400 of the 460 employés will be put to work this morning, and that the rest will be taken back as rapidly as the plant can be placed in full operation.

Terms of the settlement were substantially those offered by the company at the beginning of the strike. All strikers are to be taken back without prejudice. A 5 per cent cut in pay will be put into effect for this week. For six months, beginning Aug. 1, a scale 10 per cent lower than the old scale will be in effect.

ROOSEVELT RESTS ABOARD WARSHIP IN ISLAND'S BAY

ABOARD CRUISER HOUSTON, ANCHORED IN GALAPAGOS ARCHIPELAGO, July 24.—(AP)—President Roosevelt crossed the equator today and tonight rested aboard the U. S. S. Houston, anchored in Sullivan bay, San Salvador or James Island, one of the smaller isles of the Galapagos.

Tomorrow morning the Houston, which is bearing the President on a fishing cruise, will go north of the equator and cross it again in order to reach Albemarle Island, largest of the Galapagos group.

Official crossing ceremonies were delayed until tomorrow in order to prevent the Sabbath day observance from conflicting with ceremonies attendant on King Neptune's arrival and to hold off the impending collision between shellbacks and pollywogs.

Norwegian Ship Bombed by Plane; Sailor Killed

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

GIBRALTAR, July 24.—The master of the Norwegian steamer Tyranna wirelessed this morning that his ship had been attacked by an unidentified plane with incendiary bombs and machine gun fire which had killed one of the crew. The bombing took place fifty miles from Oran, Algeria, and 240 miles east of Gibraltar.

FRANCO SWEEPS WESTERN SPAIN; SEIZES 23 TOWNS

Drive Gains 3,125 Square Miles of Territory.

HENDAYE, France [At the Spanish Frontier], July 24.—(AP)—Spanish rebel commanders reported late tonight they had swept government troops from the rich Estremadura region of southwestern Spain in a smashing whirlwind campaign.

During five days of the victorious drive, the rebels said two armies commanded by Gen. Gonzalo Queipo de Llano and Gen. José Saliquet captured twenty-three important towns and villages along with almost 3,125 square miles of territory whose population exceeded 400,000.

The drive which started as an effort to keep Gen. José Miaja from withdrawing his government troops to reinforce the defenses of Valencia developed startling government weaknesses in the southwest and became a smashing offensive.

Gain 25 Miles in Day.

Starting with the capture of Castuera, which the rebel said was the government capital of Estremadura, the combined forces of Queipo de Llano and Saliquet advanced 25 miles in one day, the rebels reported.

They captured the twin cities of Don Benito and Villaneuva de la Serena, as well as Navalvillar de Pala, in the fertile Guariana river valley.

Rebel troops entering Campanario said they surprised an entire government unit arriving in trucks to reinforce their hard-pressed comrades.

The advancing troops said government fighters were slaughtered as they fled. Thousands of government men and much material were reported captured and more than 1,000 bodies were left on the field by the demoralized defenders.

Smash Two Trench Lines.

Rebel dispatches said the most important victory came with the capture of Castuera, a town of 30,000 in Badajoz province seventy-five miles from the Portuguese border.

Additional victories on the eastern front gave Generalissimo Francisco Franco's forces control of new strategic positions in their offensive toward Valencia and the Mediterranean sea.

In the Castellon de la Plana sector of the eastern front, near the Mediterranean, the rebels reported the capture of the first two trench lines of government fortifications barring their path toward Segorbe. The town straddles the Teruel-to-sea highway, seventeen miles northwest of Sagunto. At Sagunto the road connects with the main coastal highway to Valencia.

This latest advance was said to have placed the rebels between the villages of Benafer and Pavias in the Espina mountain foothills just west of Caudiel and nine miles northwest of Segorbe.

Approach French Border.

The government also was on the defensive in northwestern Catalonia near the French frontier. Border advices said the rebels had concentrated a strong force under Gen. José Solchaga in the Benabarre sector for advances on Seo de Urgel and Puigcerda.

Americans Periled

(Story in adjoining column.)

Black area and arrow indicate extent of Japanese drive toward Kiukiang and Hankow. Fighting has reached the base of Kuling mountain, where fifty Americans are among many foreign refugees at the Kuling resort. Japanese planes yesterday dropped 200 bombs on Kiukiang.

JAPANESE PERIL CHINESE REFUGE OF 50 AMERICANS

Drive Nears Resort City on Kuling Mountain.

SHANGHAI, July 24.—(AP)—A Japanese force was reported today to have reached the foot of Kuling mountain, on which is the resort where there are more than 50 Americans among 150 foreigners.

Kuling, near the shores of Lake Poyang, is fourteen miles southeast of Kiukiang, the Yangtze river port the Japanese are aiming for in their drive toward Hankow, Chinese provisional capital.

Intensifying their aerial attacks, Japanese planes rained 200 bombs upon Kiukiang and vicinity, damaging severely numerous buildings and Chinese positions. An unconfirmed report said foreign oil company installations three miles down the river from the port were struck and damaged.

Japs Use 2,000 Shock Troops.

A seven mile stretch between Kutang, on the lake shore, and Kiukiang became a bitterly contested battlefield as 2,000 Japanese shock troops fought along the south bank of the Yangtze in an effort to make a final assault on Kiukiang.

The invaders' warships shelled Chinese positions to clear the way for additional landings and to permit the shock troops to advance but defending shore batteries kept up an incessant fire. Kiukiang is 135 miles from Hankow.

The appearance of Japanese at the foot of Kuling mountain was interpreted as indicating either a plan to occupy the resort or to cut the Kiukiang-Nanchang railroad between Kiukiang and Teian, forty miles to the south.

Bomb Positions Along River.

Confirming reports of continued Chinese resistance along the Yangtze, a Japanese naval communique announced Japanese planes bombed defense positions down the river from Kiukiang at Hukow and other points.

They also bombed the airport at Changsha, Hunan province capital, and reported four Chinese planes on the ground were seriously damaged.

The fate of foreign property on Kiukiang's bund was in the balance.

Wharves and installations of the Standard Oil company and British oil and shipping interests in Kiukiang are valued at several million Chinese dollars.

On the northern front Chinese asserted Japanese forces were withdrawing from Honan province except for sizable garrisons along the Lunghai railroad at Suchow, Lanfeng, and Kaifeng.

It was believed the Japanese were carrying out a plan to give up considerable areas they had occupied in order to concentrate their strength along occupied portions of the Peking-Hankow and Tientsin-Pukow railroads.

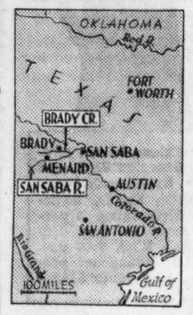
BOY HERO SAVES 14 MAROONED BY FLOODS IN TEXAS

Swims Torrent with Wire to Their Barn Refuge.

San Saba, Tex., July 24.—[Special.]—Swimmers and boatmen who fought the flooded current of Brady creek and the swollen San Saba river late today completed the rescue of 23 persons who had been marooned for two days. When the crest of flood, which covered a third of this town of 2,200 population, passed this afternoon, the river was 42½ feet above flood stage.



Arrows show streams which have flooded wide area in Texas.

Rain fell again last night, but today was clear. Losses caused by the flood included 30 houses washed away and heavy damage to much other property that withstood the powerful current. Two persons drowned last week.

Youth Is Hero of Flood.

Out of the flood area tonight came a story of heroism on the part of a young son of J. D. Jones, a rancher. For two days and nights fourteen members of the José Jamanay family had been marooned in a barn, nobody being able to cross a 300 yard stretch of water to rescue them.

Today the Jones boy swam through the current, dragging one end of a wire behind him. The wire was fastened to the barn and the Jamanay family, including several small children, made their way hand over hand to safety. Boatmen rescued nine other persons who had been trapped in the upper floors of houses or on roofs by the rising water.

The American Red Cross set up a refugee camp at Harkeyville, a small village west of San Saba, where the homeless were being fed and sheltered.

$5,000,000 Loss in East.

New York, July 24.—[Special.]—Eastern states over which rain fell virtually all of last week counted their damage at nearly 5 million dollars today when skies cleared again. New England, where more rivers went out of their banks today, was hardest hit and will have a loss of nearly 3 million dollars.

Pennsylvania and New Jersey farmers saw their crops ruined or washed away by flooded streams. In West Virginia and Ohio the loss to growers was heavy. Ohio and West Virginia also had property damage during the week.

Clear weather is forecast for this week and government observers said they believed the summer's worst and longest rainy season was over.

BRITISH-FRENCH ARMIES ARE SEEN FIGHTING AS ONE

PARIS, July 24.—(AP)—Leslie Hore-Belisha, British war minister, today said France and Great Britain now are united under "what seems to be one general staf and one flag."

He ended a series of military and political conferences with a meeting with Premier Edouard Daladier and declared shortly before his departure for London: "It looks as though the two general staffs are as one. The French tri-color and the British Union Jack seem as one flag."

Hore-Belisha declined to disclose the exact nature of the conversations he had during the week with Daladier, Minister of Justice Paul Reynaud, and Maj. Gen. Marie Gustave Gamelin, chief of general staf, both in Amiens and Paris, except to say they were "general discussions with our colleagues."

Gay Nineties Again

Women's skirts will be the same this fall; that is, 15 inches from the floor. In other respects, however, her attire will be reminiscent of the gay '90s.

This became evident yesterday at a preview of the fall fashion show of the Style Creators of Chicago, which will be given Tuesday and Thursday nights of this week and next in the College inn of the Hotel Sherman. More than 10,000 buyers of women's apparel are expected in Chicago for the various fall markets.

Fabrics, the preview indicated, will be more luxurious than last year. Sleeves will be long and usually leg o' mutton. Bodies will be quite full and bloused. And hats will be gayly feathered.

Black will be the predominant color, followed in importance by teal blue and brown. Many new shades, such as raspberry, laurel green, and toast brown [golden] are being introduced.

5 AND 10 HEIRESS PERMITS SON TO SEE HIS FATHER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 25 [Monday].—Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow, estranged husband of Barbara Hutton, $40,000,000 five and ten cent store heiress, is seeing his 2 year old son, Lance, regularly, the Daily Herald says this morning.

The paper states the count said the countess sends the child from her mansion in Regent's Park to see his father at the Ritz hotel. After charges of threatening his wife were withdrawn at Bow street Police court on July 13 the count said he would remain in London in the hope of seeing the boy, the Herald declares.

"He is a most attractive boy," the count is quoted as saying, "and meeting him is a real joy. I have made no plans for the future and I do not know how long I will remain in London."

Lance was made a ward of the court on request of the countess last month.

U. S. RABBI JAILED IN PARIS AS HEAD OF DRUGS TRAFIC

Narcotics Bound in Books Sent to Brooklyn.

PARIS, July 24.—Isaac Leifer, who called himself "a grand rabbi" from Brooklyn, is in jail here charged with trying to smuggle heroin and other narcotics into the United States, hidden in the binding of a Talmud and Hebrew prayer books.

He told a bookbinder, the latter said, that the little packets which he was putting in the binding was sand from Jerusalem for the comfort of his co-religionists in Brooklyn.

Altogether about forty pounds of this "sand" has been discovered by the French police in books which the rabbi was thoughtfully sending home through registered mail.

On Tips from America.

Leifer's arrest took place some days ago, apparently on information from American police engaged in fighting opium trafic, but was kept secret until the French police had assembled all their facts. Today they issued an account of how the long bearded, bespectacled, and rather lugubrious looking rabbi was arrested. He had been watched carefully for some time.

When the French police decided to act they took care to make no slip. Leifer drove to the bookbinder's in a taxicab and took delivery of a number of books in a quiet street. As he crossed a boulevard the taxi stopped and picked up a second man, Hermann Gottdiener, then drove to the bourse postal office, where Gottdiener registered all books to addresses in the United States.

When this batch had been dispatched, Leifer returned to the bookbinder's for a second batch and again on the way picked up Gottdiener. It was then that Commissioner Albayez of the Surete Nationale [secret police] stopped the taxicab and invited the two men to accompany him to a police station, where the books were opened and Leifer arrested. His papers showed he was born in Poland in 1893 and is a naturalized American. Gottdiener is employed in a laundry.

All the books registered at the post-office were seized by the police and further search revealed a valise of books left by Gottdiener in a café. In all nearly forty pounds of heroin—about $1,900 worth—were traced to Leifer and his associate.

Brooklyn Inquiry Fails.

New York, July 24.—[Special.]—An inquiry among Hebrew congregations in Brooklyn today failed to reveal any Brooklyn grand rabbi named Isaac Leifer known to be in Europe at this time. There are four grand rabbis in Brooklyn. Three of these are named Leifer.

The four Brooklyn grand rabbis, like others in the city, are holders of an honorary title assumed because of their completion of studies in the Chassidic Hebrew sect.

MEXICO RULING PARTY PURGED; 2 MILITARY LEADERS EXPELLED

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, July 24.—Congress has scheduled for discussion early this week the cases of Gen. Ramon F. Iturbe and Col. Boliva Sierra, both of whom were expelled last night from the ruling National Revolutionary party in a labor directed purge.

Both men, accused by the dominant Federation of Mexican Workers unions as being "fascists," had refused to withdraw their names from a manifesto declaring against both Fascism and communism and calling for "a democratic front" supported by the Mexican people.

Behind Iturbe and Sierra are said to stand important conservative elements of the Mexican army. The fact that congress intends to consider the cases of the two men separately is viewed by the press as an indication the legislature may not stand behind Louis I. Rodriguez, head of President Lazaro Cardenas' political organization who signed the expulsion order.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

DAY IS DONE

By CALEB

EACH AFTERNOON when 5:30 comes, the store relaxes for a moment. Last minute shoppers seek the street once more, and workers in the store pause to round out the day's duties and prepare to leave.

Then they too move out through the open doorways. There are thousands of these men and women. From the vantage point of a balcony overlooking one main aisle to the doorways, they present an absorbing picture. Many types and ages are represented in the group flowing out to join the home going crowds. It is a cross section of the community.

For more than seventy-five years, virtually without interruption, this same drama has been enacted at the close of every business day. Youngsters just beginning their career, heads of families and white-haired veterans carry with them across the threshold of this store the means of translating their varied hopes and dreams into reality and substance.

Second in size only to the investment each year in merchandise is our investment in employes. In the final analysis, the money paid for merchandise likewise is translated into wages. It filters back from workers in manufacturing plants to producers of fabrics and other materials, and from them to the sources of raw materials such as the cotton fields and sheep ranches. Over the period of the store's life billions of dollars have been thus invested.

The money received by us for merchandise remains in our hands only briefly. Most of it moves quickly into the channels of our major investments in human skill and effort, beginning with our employes and progressing through their hands to builder, butcher, baker, landlord, railway employe, theater owner, and others in the community from whom they buy goods or service.

The money we use in buying more merchandise immediately sets other wheels in motion. Designers, factory production, skilled craftsmen — vast numbers of them in this community and other parts of the nation—are drawn into the growing cycle.

All this constitutes a responsibility and an obligation of which we are keenly aware. Upon the reasonable, vigorous and intelligent operation of this business depend the happiness and economic welfare of literally thousands of homes in Chicago and elsewhere. It is a sober and chastening thought.

HITLER AID HAILS 13 NAZIS HANGED IN VIENNA REVOLT

Putsch in Which Dollfuss Died Celebrated.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KLAGENFURT, Germany, July 24.—Adolf Hitler's "Greater Germany" united today to pay tribute to the memory of thirteen Austrian "martyrs" who were hanged in Austria after the assassination of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss in Vienna four years ago.

A great rally was held at Klagenfurt which was addressed by Rudolf Hess, Hitler's deputy. The audience included Nazi participants in the uprising of July 24, 1934.

"The thirteen men went to their triumphant deaths with unshakable confidence in Adolf Hitler and his greater Germany," Hess said.

He ridiculed a world which, he said, believes that Germany had conquered Austria by force of arms.

Says Nazis Made Only Sacrifices.

"The winning back of Austria to Germany did not cost opponents a single drop of blood—it was only the German Nazis who sacrificed their blood for the sake of unity of the German people," he cried. "Nobody suffered any damage through the incorporation of Austria into greater Germany."

Declaring that many persons would like to see the unity of Germany smashed and the German army again reduced to 100,000 men, Hess added that they wanted this "so Germany could again be blackmailed and tasks imposed upon her which would drive the people to the verge of starvation."

"They lie when they say Germany threatens peace," he said. "At the same time they watch silently while small states threaten the peace."

Observers regarded this statement as a reference to Czechoslovakia.

"Peace Secured Through Army."

"What an irresponsible game is being played with the peace of Europe, if not with the peace of the whole world!" Hess declared. "However, we do not believe these new irresponsible intrigues will succeed in breaking the peace.

"We believe in a higher justice which will not permit a brutal war to be brought upon the world again with its unthinkable consequences. Whatever may be, Germany has provided that her peace is not dependent upon others.

"The world knows that Germany's peace is guaranteed through her armed forces, which are stronger than ever—through the armed forces of a nation at whose head stands Adolf Hitler."

Memorial to Albert

Unfinished monument erected at Nieuport, Belgium, to King Albert, who was killed in mountain climbing accident. The finished monument is an open rotunda around an 18 foot equestrian statue of King Albert.

NIEUPORT, Belgium, July 24.—(AP)—Forty thousand Belgian war veterans cheered their royal family today at the unveiling of a memorial to King Albert on the banks of the River Yser.

Albert's son, King Leopold, headed the former soldiers who came in a solemn pilgrimage to Belgium's holy ground, where thousands of her defenders died in the world war.

Amid the booming of guns King Leopold laid a wreath and unveiled the memorial which was blessed by the bishop of Bruges. The ceremony ended with a parade which included delegations from the American Legion.

The $100,000 cost of the memorial was borne entirely by Belgium's war veterans. It is an open rotunda surrounding an 18 foot equestrian statue of Albert, Belgium's war king.

Eldara Man Dies in Fire That Destroys His Home

Pittsfield, Ill., July 24.—George Colvin, 53 years old, of Eldara, son of former Pike county clerk Hayes Colvin, was burned to death this morning in a fire of undetermined origin that destroyed his home.

LEAGUE RULE ON SANCTIONS IS HIT BY SEVEN NATIONS

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, July 24.—(AP)—Seven neutral nations today denounced the league of nations covenant article compelling them to join economic and financial punitive measures. They declared their right to decide for themselves whether to participate in the so-called sanctions.

Members of the "Oslo states," at the close of a two day conference here, announced: "Belgium, Denmark, Finland, Luxembourg, Norway, The Netherlands, and Sweden, convinced of the necessity of participating in the league's work, declare they regard the sanctions system under present conditions and in accordance with practices recently followed, as being nonobligatory in character—not only for a single group of states but for all league members. They are convinced it is in the league's interest to state this right of free estimation."

The league council gave such freedom to Switzerland last May 14. This was followed June 24 by declarations both from Germany and Italy that they would respect Swiss neutrality provided Switzerland followed her traditional aloofness from international squabbles.

U. S. MINING ENGINEER VANISHES ON BUSINESS TRIP TO HONGKONG

MANILA, July 25 [Monday.]—(AP)—Reports from Hongkong today told of the mysterious disappearance of William C. Sage, 46 years old, Manila mining engineer, during a business trip to the Chinese city.

Mrs. Sage, who remained here, said she received a cablegram from her husband saying he would return July 16 When he failed to appear she appealed to Hongkong police. They reported Sage walked from his Hongkong hotel July 18, without his hat, luggage, or passport, and has not been seen since.

Sage, a native of Rochester, Ill., and a graduate of Beloit college and the Colorado School of Mines, had lived in Manila about four years.

It's easy to see that healthy nerves are a "must" with Miss Reed. "Camels," she says, "are so mild that steady smoking never gets my nerves even the least bit frayed. Camels don't ever tire my taste either."

GOLF'S GREAT STRATEGIST, HENRY PICARD (right), analyzes every stroke. He used the same care in picking his cigarette. "Camels are different," says Mr. Picard, "from all angles! When tournament play tires me out, a Camel gives my energy a friendly 'lift.' Camels agree with me—all 'round. Most top-flight golfers I know smoke Camels."

"CALLS COMING IN FAST," says Radio Patrolman Harold Sickles, "put me under a steady tension. I can't afford jittery nerves. So my off-duty smoke is Camel. Camels certainly put a lot more pleasure and contentment in my smoking. I smoke Camels plenty 'for digestion's sake.' Believe me, 'I'd walk a mile for a Camel'—any time!"

Marshall Wayne pauses for a moment to answer Elnora Greenlaw's question on his choice of a cigarette.

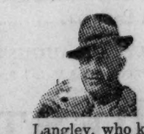
"At the warehouse sales," says Leon Mullen, experienced planter, "Camel buys the choice grades of tobacco. That's the reason why most of us men who grow and know tobacco smoke Camel cigarettes. We certainly appreciate the difference in the tobacco Camel buys."



"Almost every one of my fine baskets of tobacco went to Camel buyers last year," says G. A. Langley, who knows tobacco growing from every angle. "Better tobaccos mean better smoking," he adds. "That means Camels to me—and to most other growers too."

CHICAGO MUSEUM SEEKS TO EXHIBIT WRIGHTS' PLANE

Decision Rests with Man Who First Flew It.

Hope was expressed yesterday that Orville Wright will choose Chicago as the final resting place for Kitty Hawk flying machine, in which he made the first successful airplane flight.

Officials of the Museum of Science and Industry have been investigating for some time the possibility of getting the plane for the museum in Jackson park, it was learned. The most valuable aviation relic in the world, it is now housed in the British National museum in London.

"We would greatly appreciate having the original Wright plane," said Dr. Philip Fox, director of the Chicago museum.

Chicago has many competitors for the honor of displaying the plane, and the decision rests entirely with Wright, who, at the age of 68, lives in seclusion in Dayton, O.

All Offers Rejected.

He has steadfastly rejected one offer after another since 1925 when he removed the plane that looks like an overgrown box kite from the Smithsonian institution in Washington, D. C. Angered by Dr. Charles D. Walcott, then secretary of the institution, he shipped his flying treasure to the London museum, where it has remained ever since.

Wright took this action after Dr. Walcott labeled a machine designed by Samuel Langley as the first heavier than air machine to make a sustained flight carrying a man.

Orville and his brother, Wilbur Wright, bicycle makers, achieved an 852 foot 59 second flight with their contraption on Dec. 17, 1903, at Kitty Hawk, N. C. On Dec. 8, 1903, an attempt to fly the Langley machine had ended with a dive in the Potomac river.

Langley Plane Tested.

During litigation over patents between Orville Wright [Wilbur died in 1912] and Glenn Curtiss in 1914, the Smithsonian institution permitted Curtiss to take the Langley plane out for tests. Wright charged that fundamental changes were made at this time, enabling false claims to be made.

Walcott's successor, Dr. Charles G. Abbott, gave the Kitty Hawk plane full credit as the first flying machine to carry a man successfully, but Wright was determined to prove conclusively to America that the Wright brothers were first. Even yet, he is said to be bitter.

Henry Ford, who has a museum of his own, is known as a leading contender for the right to exhibit the plane. Last April he had Wright as a guest at his famed Greenfield village in Dearborn, Mich., for the dedication of the restored home and bicycle shop of the Wrights.

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

COPENHAGEN, July 24.—Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Nazi field marshal, arrived in Denmark today aboard the yacht Carin, with an escort of two warships. His visit was characterized as completely unofficial. The field marshal and his party went ashore at Elsinore and drove to the medieval castle of Kronborg, original scene of Hamlet, to watch a performance of the tragedy in the castle courtyard. It was given by a German troupe directed by Gustav Cryndyens, artistic chief for German theaters which are under control of Goering.

BROTHER SLAYS BROTHER; FATHER DEFENDS KILLER

Brands Dead Son Menace to Society.

A father of two sons, one of whom shot the other to death after a midnight drinking bout, defended the slayer yesterday. In justifying the shooting, he branded the slain son—an ex-convict—as a menace to society.

The father is John O'Rourke, 54 years old, 1650 West 61st street, a retired sign painter. His elder son, Thomas, 25, was shot by his younger son, Leo, 20, early in the day in a prairie at 61st street and Ashland avenue.

Leo told the Chicago Lawn police he shot his brother after Thomas produced a knife and announced he was going home to kill their father. Leo said he carried the gun because he feared his brother would become unruly. Thomas, he declared, was addicted to marihuana and frequently said of himself: "I'm a killer at heart."

Calls Slain Son a Bully.

"My boy Thomas was a bully," the father told Assistant State's Attorney Alexander Napoli. "I suppose you could call him a drunkard, too. I can't remember how many times he has threatened to kill me or beat me. Many a time he struck me and frequently he punched Leo."

While the father never asked Thomas' arrest, he said the son was seized by police five times for assaulting him. Thomas was ordered to stay away from the father's home. O'Rourke lives with three daughters. His wife Agnes and his son Leo live at 6159 South Ashland avenue.

Inquest to Be Held Today.

An inquest will be held today. Leo was held without bail pending the verdict of a coroner's jury.

Thomas was sentenced to Pontiac reformatory in 1930 for burglary. He was paroled in 1934 and discharged from parole last year.

The deadline for other festival contests, which include those for men, women, and mixed choruses, adult and juvenile bands, baton twirlers, violinists, cornetists, and vocalists living outside of Cook county will be Monday, Aug. 8.

AURORA TO FETE OLDEST CITIZEN, 103 TOMORROW

Bert S. Wilder, Aurora's oldest citizen, will celebrate his 103d birthday tomorrow. He lives at 727 North Lake street, Aurora, with his third wife, Hannah, 84. The Cosmopolitan club of Aurora will honor Wilder at a luncheon. Wilder was born in Lawrence county, New York, on July 26, 1835. About two years later his family moved to Aurora by covered wagon. Wilder has lived there ever since. As a child he played with Indian boys.

BUND SPEAKERS ASSAIL JEWS AND PRESS AT PICNIC

Jews and the American press were attacked yesterday in speeches at a picnic of the German-American bund in Ukrainian park on Higgins road, two miles south of Park Ridge.

"It is our privilege and duty," declared George Froboese of Milwaukee, "to oppose anti-German propaganda by Jewish capitalists. The Jews are taking over Washington. Let the reporters of our so-called free press go back and tell their Jewish publishers it takes more courage to be a Nazi than a cowardly sucker who kowtows to those in authority."

Fritz Kuhn, national leader of the bund, spoke in German. He and Froboese, who is regional director, wore black uniforms and gray shirts. Before the speeches were started girls and boys and members of the bund drilled. Swastika emblems and the American flag were hung together at the gate of the park and over the speakers' stand.

TACKLE PRISONS' PROBLEMS TODAY AT A CONFERENCE

Director A. L. Bowen of the state department of public welfare announced yesterday that a conference will be held today at the Stateville prison to which legislators, sherifs, state's attorneys and judges from throughout Illinois have been invited. He described it as the annual interdepartmental conference with the division of prisons, pardon and parole board, and the division of criminal identification. New industries for the prison system, rules enforcement, enlargement of prison libraries, training schools for guards and rewards for exceptional service by employés are among the topics to be discussed.

U. S. TOURISTS FIRED UPON BY SNIPERS ON PALESTINE HIGHWAY

HAIFA, Palestine, July 24.—(AP)—A large party of American tourists was fired upon today by snipers near Athlit, south of here, but no one was injured.

The tourists were from the liner Roma and were returning in a convoy of 80 cars when 15 shots were fired at them.

A Jew was slightly wounded near Acre when snipers fired at a Jewish bus.

SUGGESTS A LAW TO BAN THE SALE OF TOY PISTOLS

Lieut. Otto Erlanson of the detective bureau suggested yesterday that the city council pass an ordinance forbidding the sale of toy pistols that look like real ones.

Fake weapons of this type were found in the arsenal of three ex-convicts arrested Saturday. The men are Lawrence Russo, Frank Gentile and Tony Catalano. The gang's loot in merchandise and cash robberies totaled $100,000. The arsenal was found in the West Side Social and Athletic club at 830 Arthington street.

Ben Addis, druggist at 2212 Madison street, told the police that he was held up last Monday by two men who took $30. Then then tossed one of the toy pistols at his feet and fled. Addis said it scared him just as much as a real gun would have. Criminals who use such weapons are guilty of plain robbery, which carries a lighter penalty than robbery with a gun.

Selling the Manufacturer's Product to America's No. 1 Home Market

Throughout America, Philadelphia is famed as the City of Homes.

Widely known is the saying, "In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin."

From a small beginning, nearly half a century ago, The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin has grown steadily in the friendly interest and confidence of the people.

Men and women and children welcome The Bulletin into the family circle.

It is published with understanding of Philadelphia home life . . . and with reading interest for every income class.

It is edited with care for exactness in headlines and news...for quality in all features and departments.

Made up with studied attention value, page after page, it is a thoroughly read newspaper.

And for thirty-three years, it has led all Philadelphia daily newspapers in number of readers.

With by far the largest daily circulation in Philadelphia, The Evening Bulletin is one of America's largest daily newspapers. No newspaper of similar size in the nation approaches it in years of leadership.

Its position in Philadelphia and in the nation was gained without use of prizes, premiums or subscriber contests. Showing the response of the people to a carefully prepared newspaper!

The Bulletin's circulation—almost entirely within the retail trading area, reaches nearly every Philadelphia home.

It gives one-newspaper coverage at low advertising cost, of America's largest market of individual homes!

The manufacturer's best prospects are people who live in individual, single-family homes.

There are more of them in Philadelphia than in any other city of America.

They are reached by the newspaper that has grown into Philadelphia's home life — lending to the manufacturer's message something of its own reader interest and confidence.

Your advertising agency knows the opportunity of the Philadelphia market . . . the economy and success of advertising to this home-loving people, by the use alone of The Evening Bulletin.

Drama in The Census Figures

Not alone are census figures dramatic in showing Philadelphia's diversity and leadership in industry,—

But more so, in revealing Philadelphia as the city where the art of joyful, contented living finds its greatest expression in America.

Nine out of ten Philadelphia dwellings are single-family homes. More single-family dwellings than all the boroughs of New York City and Buffalo added together! Than Chicago and St. Louis combined! Than Detroit with Cleveland! More than in any of twenty-two states.*

Thus, with far more single-family homes, Philadelphia is the nation's largest market for equipment, appliances and all home products.

MAURICE COWEN WINS PRESIDENCY OF YOUNG G. O. P.

Illinois Convention Elects Dark Horse Candidate.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ill., July 24.—[Special.]—Maurice L. Cowen, 26 years old, a Chicago lawyer, was unanimously elected president of the Young Republican organization of Illinois as the closing act of the state convention here today. Harold Walsh of Bloomington was elected junior national committeeman.

Harold Walsh.

The unanimity of action in Cowen's election did not portray the hours of behind-the-scenes manipulation which preceded it.

Until the report of the nominating committee was presented on the convention floor, Richard Nowinson of Chicago had declared his name would be presented and his backers predicted his election, but admitted they would have stiff opposition from the factions which backed Cowen, who was brought forth as a dark horse.

Nowinson Boom Collapses.

The Nowinson boom collapsed, however, a few minutes before the committee report was carried into the hall. It collapsed, Nowinson declared, when the Sangamon county delegation withdrew its support. He blamed this on Henry J. Busch, chairman of the Sangamon county central committee, who Nowinson said engineered the delegation's shift to Cowen.

Cowen was backed by followers of Edward F. Moore, chairman of the Cook county central committee, whose agent on the grounds was Arthur J. Bidwill of River Forest.

Moore's support of Cowen drew fire yesterday from Thomas J. Downs, retiring junior national committeeman, who was Nowinson's principal backer. Downs charged Moore with attempting to take over the Young Republicans, but delegates today seemed all of one mind—to approve the slate presented by the nominating committee.

The convention adopted a platform demanding the elimination of bossism and dictatorship from government, asserting the rights of workers to organize free from coercion, calling for progressive legislation to raise the standards of living, and asking adequate relief until jobs for youth are available in industry.

Cites Loss of Jobs.

The keynoter, Richard J. Lyons, nominee for the United States senate, devoted his address to the problems of youth under the Roosevelt administration.

Citing the increase of unemployment during the last six years Lyons said that under Roosevelt youth has lost its traditional American opportunities for individual advancement.

"Under the New Deal the youth of America has turned cynical," he said. "We must restore their confidence and give them new hope and new goals."

Other speakers at the morning session included Stephen A. Day of Evanston, nominee for congressman at large; George L. Lambur Jr. of Chicago, candidate for clerk of the Supreme court, and Wiley B. Garvin of Mascoutah, candidate for superintendent of public instruction.

MOORE REPLIES TO ATTACK

Edward F. Moore, chairman of the Cook county Republican central committee, replied yesterday to the attack upon him made Saturday by Thomas J. Downs at the state convention of the Young Republicans of Illinois in Bloomington. Downs charged that Moore's has been "an unreformed, beer peddling, racketeering, gangster leadership."

Moore did not mention Downs by name. Neither did he mention George F. Harding, Republican national committeeman, although it was clear that the object of his counter-attack was Harding, in whose camp Downs is counted.

Moore States Regret.

"Like all good Republicans," said Moore, "I regret that a man holding high party office has continued through the lips of another the personal hostility toward the regular county organization that he manifested before the primary last April. At that time he refused to help in the campaign, sought to stop others from helping, and even declined to help in an effort to bring out the Republican vote. I had hoped the passing of three months had cured all that.

"As far as the state convention of the Republicans is concerned, I insist that I have not taken part in its election of officers or its other internal affairs. All I have wanted of the Young Republicans of Cook county as county chairman is that the present skeleton organization be built up into a complete organization covering every ward and township with workers who coöperate with the regularly elected ward and township committeemen."

In reply to questions, Moore said he does not sell beer. He is a special representative of a sales company and in that capacity calls on the managers of the large downtown hotels and clubs of Chicago. He does not, he said, have any contact with tavern or road house business.

Woman, 91, Hitch-Hikes 120 Miles to Visit Folks

Welch, W. Va., July 24.—(AP)—Mrs. Hilda Edgepath, 91 years old, Blacksburg, W. Va., decided it was time to visit the folks near here, so she hitchhiked. She walked to the side of the highway at Blacksburg, got a ride to Bluefield, W. Va., 75 miles distant where the Salvation Army arranged transportation for her as well as a night's lodging. But early next morning Mrs. Edgepath was on her way, still hitch-hiking, and arrived for a visit with the folks at nearby Elbert. The entire trip was 120 miles.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 24.—(AP)—Leopold Stokowski, the symphony orchestra conductor who has been Greta Garbo's companion on a tour of Europe, left here today enroute to the United States. Miss Garbo accompanied him to the station but remained with friends in an automobile when the train left.

G. O. P. PLANNERS TO SEEK LABOR, CAPITAL ACCORD

Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, and Louis K. Comstock, president of the Merchants' Association of New York City, will address the Republican program committee in Chicago on Aug. 2. Each will speak on "Cooperation Between Labor and Capital for the Common Good."

Matthew Woll.

Dr. Glenn Frank, chairman of the committee, made this announcement yesterday in completing plans for a series of round table discussions from Aug. 1 to 6.

"In these two gentlemen," said Chairman Frank in announcing the Woll-Comstock joint appearance, "we have representatives of a powerful organization of employés and a most historic and influential organization of employers. They will try to lay down a program on which labor and capital can cease from warfare and can begin to work together for the national benefit."

BEER GUZZLERS UNITE TO MAKE SKIPPERS OF SIPPERS—NOT SOUSES

Guzzlers of the frothy brew—please meet the Accrescent Roster of American Beer Sippers. It's a society for beer drinkers, the first of its kind in the country since repeal. It has just received its state charter.

R. Robert Longabaugh, 5445 West End avenue, the president, told all about it yesterday. He explained the word "accrescent" means ever growing. The full title of the society can be shortened to Arabs by taking the first letter of each word in the name. The society, he said, is modeled after the Ancient Order of Froth Blowers in England, which has a membership of 600,000.

The purpose of the society is to bring beer drinkers together. One of the ideas is to teach people to drink intelligently and thus combat any effort to restore prohibition. Members will be rated according to capacity. The casual drinker is a sipper. The higher gradings are, progressively, snifters, snorters, scoopers, swizzlers, and skippers. Souses are barred.

3 Seek Post of Assessor, but It's a One Armed Race

Dequeen, Ark., July 24.—(AP)—Each of the three candidates for the nomination of Sevier county tax assessor in the August Democratic primary is minus his left arm. Incumbent Ed Lee Cox lost his in a sawmill accident, as did his opponent, Constable Ed Shipman. A hunting mishap similarly handicapped Cathell Hendricks, the third candidate. All reside at Dequeen, home of State Auditor Oscar Humphrey, who also is armless.

Chateau Thierry Veteran, with 133 Wounds, Is Dead

Miami, Fla., July 24.—(AP)—Wallace H. Smith, often described as the most wounded man in the world war, died of a heart attack today as he drove his automobile homeward from an American Legion meeting. A shell explosion which killed thirty-four of his comrades near Château Thierry wounded Smith in 132 places. As he lay on the ground he was bayoneted through the left lung. He enlisted at the age of 15.

THE LABOR BOARD'S ROAD TO MOSCOW.

The United States Court of Appeals in Chicago has set aside the rule of the National Labor Relations board of March 14 directing the Fansteel Metallurgical company of North Chicago to rehire ninety-two of its employés who were discharged in the sitdown strike of February, last year. The decision of the court held that the labor act could not protect a worker from discharge when he had seized property, damaged it in the course of illegal occupation, and had been in contempt of the processes of the courts in refusing to obey writs.

Such conduct, the court found, was just cause for discharge and the employés could not compel their employer to reinstate them or to pay them back wages if they had been guilty of such crimes. The labor board rule, which justifies the charge that it is a partisan agent of the C. I. O., had held that the sitdown strikers were under the protection of the National Labor act when they took possession of the plant and refused to evacuate it, and that the company, being guilty of violations of the act, was required to take them back.

Seizure and destruction of property could not be completely condoned even by the labor board, which had to characterize the strike as a "foolish and illegal act." At the time the strikers took the plant they were encouraged by several departments of the federal government, including Mme. Perkins of the labor department, who said that it was not determined that such seizures were illegal, and by the postoffice department, which aided strikers, whether they were in the plant or besieging it themselves. With such encouragement the Fansteel employés were naturally rather than foolishly resisting the writs of court and the officers who endeavored to enforce them.

The strikers made it necessary for the law enforcement officers to use gas bombs twice in attempts to clear the property of its illegal holders, and a great deal of property damage was done before the law violators were ejected. The labor board overlooked this lawlessness and would have required the company to take back the men who had done the damage. The federal court finds that there was ample cause for discharge and that the employés spurned the legal remedy they had in the labor law.

With any other decision from the courts it would be difficult to see where the country would stop short of a real condition of anarchy. This C. I. O. federal labor board has been working on a perfect communistic formula, that the seizure of industrial plants is a legal and legitimate method of conducting a labor controversy. If that theory were to prevail the tactics of the Italian communists who took possession of the Fiat Automobile works and undertook not only to hold them but to operate them would be recognized by the law of the United States as legal. Those Fiat workers brought Mussolini down on Italy, just as their Russian comrades established Stalin in power. When the United States begins playing with such forces it will be a perilous situation.

MOTOR ROADS BY ACCIDENT.

Work on the three lane outer drive north of Belmont avenue is nearing completion. Even now, before the highway is finished, Chicago possesses a motor way fifteen miles or more in length without a grade crossing to interrupt the flow of trafic.

The use of the lake front for automobile transportation was largely an accident. The pioneer motorists took to the boulevards because few other streets at the time were well paved if they were paved at all. The roads through Jackson and Lincoln parks and Lake Shore drive were easily widened to accommodate increasing motor trafic. No condemnation was required; it was necessary only to sacrifice a strip of lawn. The lake was a complete barrier to cross trafic.

The Burnham plan was conceived before the days of the automobile, but as the elements in the lake front plan were realized the motor road was extended through them as a matter of course. The absence of cross trafic is so great a convenience that today motorists disregard Euclid's advice and travel far out of their way to reach the outer drive. They save time by doing so.

If our principal automobile routes had been selected by forethought rather than accident the main artery north of the loop would follow Milwaukee or Clybourn avenue and the main road to the south would follow Cottage Grove avenue or perhaps some street to the west of it. These routes would have been selected because they are closer to the geographical center of the city and closer to the centers of population; also each was a hypotenuse. The boundary of a city is obviously not the best site for its main highway. The choice has been made, however, and it is not likely that a more rational plan will be adopted for another fifty years.

The outer drives have served to demonstrate the soundness of the principle of trafic separation. Every one has been convinced with the possible exception of the public authorities and persons with special interests to serve. Even they may be expected some day to grow up and recognize the importance of grade separation in eliminating accidents and serving the convenience of the people.

The location of the north-south artery meanwhile is fixed. The next step will be the construction of elevated roads extending westward from it to those communities in the city and suburbs which have the enterprise to demand better facilities. Some time in the future we may expect that an elevated road will be constructed along Ashland or perhaps Western avenue. When that has happened, Chicago will be well started on a system of modern transportation.

HEIRESSES AND OTHER NOTABLES.

Readers who have been following the stories from Racine, Wis., and Toronto after the death of Maybelle Horlick Sidley probably have become aware that Mrs. Sidley was the malted milk heiress. There may be some mysteries yet to be uncovered or explained, but of one thing there can be no possible doubt. Mrs. Sidley was the malted milk heiress.

Recently the domestic affairs of the Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow occupied the attention of London police courts and, as usual, she was identified for the readers as the 5 and 10 heiress. We also have had the tin plate heiress whose matrimonial experience was with the royal family of Greece. These distinctions may be persistently annoying, but it must be conceded that they are democratic. It is probably not the democracy of the proletariat, but it is at least that of the industrial bourgeoisie.

It is truer of progress here in the United States than elsewhere that we went from status to contract. Less here than elsewhere is a person born to be of a certain condition. He makes the condition for himself. A status is frequently best defined by a title, which has advantages, as for instance, the Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow. Denmark produced the count. We produced the 5 and 10 heiress, and that is a more definitive tag than "count" because it indicates specifically how the distinction was obtained, whereas counts require genealogists, Burke's Peerage, and the Almanach de Gotha.

America, short on status, feels the need of convenient descriptive appellations which will distinguish a personality, principally for news purposes. Being constitutionally, in every sense of the word, opposed to titles of nobility, we have sought locutions which would be pertinent to our democratic ideology and consistent with the general tenor of our ways. Consequently we have the malted milk heiress, the 5 and 10 countess, the coco-cola king, the bromo-seltzer widow, and, in a less descriptive manner, such persons as the prominent clubman, the wealthy playboy, the man about town, the well known frequenter of the night clubs, the Broadway favorite, and here, in Chicago, the man well known on the Rialto, meaning any one who has leaned up against the buildings in Randolph street.

We had also the captains of industry, and have now the prominent tycoons, which, by the way, is an annoying adaptation borrowed from the Japanese. In certain southern sections of the country, mostly along the Atlantic seaboard, there probably still exist representatives of the first families of Virginia, the F. F. V., and there may even be some remnants of the Massachusetts codfish aristocracy. The malted milk heiress is an illustration of our search for distinctive and descriptive handles in a land which is almost entirely deprived of status.

GOOD HUNTING.

A contributor to the Voice of the People the other day proposed a bounty on the heads of those persons who permit their radios to blare. The cash inducement needn't be large, he believed; just enough to make it worth while. He thought slightly higher prices might be quoted for the gent with a receiving set in the front parlor who does his listening on the back porch and also for the housewife who keeps the radio going all day long for the sake of companionship. The radio has to be tuned up so that she can hear it no matter what part of the house she is working in.

This is excellent. The only amendment which suggests itself immediately is that a bounty is unnecessary. Just a declaration of an open season will turn the trick. There are thousands of honest citizens who will not begrudge the cost of powder, shell, and arsenic. Sport for sport's sake will fetch them.

Certainly no bounty will be required to obtain the scalps of saloonists and roadhousists, not to mention poolroomists and tavernists who keep whole neighborhoods awake with the roar of loud speakers. A number of methods of taking these man killers have been recommended, but the one which offers the best sport is the neighborhood safari. Every one who possesses a lethal weapon is invited to meet under arms at a given hour at the front door of the place. When all are gathered, the sportsmen enter en masse and kill the proprietor in as many ways as there are sportsmen and weapons. The radio is then tuned down to an appropriate pitch and the sportsmen go back home for the first decent night's sleep in a month.

WHY EXPLAIN THE SWEDES?

[Illinois State Journal.]

"How do you explain the Swedes?" asks John Fauntleroy in a note to his home town newspaper. "Their king is French, their aristocracy Scotch, and their national hero American."

The editor is stumped, of course, and there is no reply. He might relieve his embarrassment, however, by asking Mr. Fauntleroy to explain the English whose imperial royalty has been imported from various quarters at different periods, whose aristocracy is a patchwork of nationalities and whose heroes originate anywhere and everywhere.

By way of prolonging the wait and further relieving his embarrassment, the editor could ask how it comes that Germany but recently picked an Austrian for a ruler; why Russia consolidated its sundry revolutions under the direction of a New Yorker; why the patron saint of Ireland was a native of France—and so forth, while his memory of allen imprints on nationalistic history persists.

However, that will not explain the Swedes. And, getting back to that query, why explain the Swedes, anyway? They seem to be doing pretty well, and we can see no especial reason for taking them apart and analyzing them. Our notion is that it will be time enough to bother about the Swedes when we have solved problems nearer home. The Swedes are doing a good job of looking out for themselves.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

LOOKING AT IT FROM BOTH SIDES.

A girl is half witted
To wear a dress knitted,
If she happens to be not designed
In curves of perfection
In either direction—
What I mean is, before and behind.

No, some are not fitted
To wear a dress knitted;
It clings, and the critical mind
Accepts no acquittal,
For too much, or little—
Especially before and behind.

Evening Comes to the Ozarks.

Evening here in the Ozarks begins with a livelier tinkling of sheep bells in the valley. The sheep are rising from their naps in the cool, shaded stream-bed near the haunted well, collecting their lambs and falling into line to make their homeward trip to the mountain top. Soon we see them coming up, treading one after another in the narrow trail made by their sharp little hooves. Then, while the old ones take a bedtime snack of the rich, new lespedeza that carpets the pasture around the corrals, the lambs have their nightly gambol on the banks of the Big Pond. We never miss this show. They play exactly like children. Tag! Follow the leader! Even a recognizable version of cops and robbers! Then there are the acrobatics that come from sheer exuberance of youthful spirits. Straight leg jumping! Jumping with a half-turn in the air! Mock fights, and much bunting! Then, as the sun goes down, other sheep mothers come up to collect their youngsters, and slowly they seek their usual sleeping places in the corrals or straw-floored barns, with the dogs, glad of the chase, bringing up the stragglers.

* * *

As the twilight deepens I carry our deck chairs to the outdoor fireplace and kindle a fire against the evening's chill, while my husband closes gates, giving goodnight pats to his prize Shropshires, and that final handout to Donny, the pet duck, who won't go to bed without it. At last, side by side in our long chairs, we sit before the crackling wood fire to watch the green ridges about us become ragged black silhouettes against the ultra-marine sky. In the deep woods the whippoorwill sets up his lonely evening call. The sheep bells tinkle softly and intermittently as Merrybelle, Alice, the Duchess, and other bell sheep nod in their sleep; and a thousand throaty little frogs set up a jam session to drown out Wallace Beery, the huge bullfrog who reigns over the Big Pond.

* * *

Overhead the silent majesty of the mountain stars thrills us anew. Millions of them are so close, so bright; and other millions, too far away to ever be glimpsed through city smoke, powder the sky with a faint glowworm glimmer. Only two pinpoints of lamplight compete with them. One, on the next ridge, winks and disappears as we watch it. That means Uncle John Tamsett has read his evening chapter in the big Bible with the silver clasps, Aunt Lizzie has set her bread, and they have retired under the Chiny Platter quilt and the mail order blanket. Far across the valley we see the other light blink, disappear, and blink again. That means a kerosene lamp has been carried from kitchen to bedroom!

The fire burns low as the lazy fat moon slowly rises over the mountain, and a sleepy little murmur comes from the ground sparrow's nest near by. I reach for my husband's hand, and, in the heart of our beloved Ozarks, we sit quietly . . . knowing the peace that passeth all understanding.

A short, round, rubber ball of a man left a ringside table at the Chez Paree the other night after an introduction by Orchestra Leader Abe Lyman, went to the mike and sang a medley of songs that had the packed house swaying and applauding. He was Mack Gordon of Gordon and Revel, and the songs were all his and his partner's: Goodnight, My Love; There's a Lull in My Life; Did You Ever See a Dream Walking?; Sweet Some One; Sweet as a Song. Many more, and finally their latest, You're the Beat of My Heart and I've Got a Date with a Dream. What a lot of pleasure that round little man has given the world, we kept thinking.

* * *

Gordon and Revel write their songs almost telepathically, they say; Revel in his shirt sleeves at the grand, Gordon lying flat on top it, writhing and groaning in the agony of creation. They work at night mostly, with frequent gulps of hot coffee by way of stimulus. A gulp, a groan, then a triumphant It's swell of you, while I live my lips will tell of you. . . .

* * *

There were a lot of professionals among the listeners to the scheduled and unscheduled Chez Paree show. George Raft at a ringside table (he got up and did a dance number later); Cliff Hall, Veloz and Yolanda, Doris Rhodes, Lee Simms and Ilomay Bailey, Clark Dennis, Eddy Duchin, Larry Frue, Tommy Riggs, and nearly every music publisher in the country. . . . And always the shadow of the musicians' union, which prevents singers and musicians from doing impromptu numbers. A big fine if they do, and several have been cracked down on for forgetting the ruling.

NO SUBSTITUTE FOR SOAP AND WATER.

THE chap who invented soap deserves a gold medal, for it is our best bacteria destroyer, our most efficient chaser of dirt. When mixed with water that is not too hard—too heavily loaded with minerals—it becomes the purifier of choice. Although the name of this genius is unknown, somewhere along the Nile or the Euphrates there should be erected a heroic statue—a colossal figure holding aloft a bar of this indispensable chemical.

Excavators searching amid the ruins of Pompeii found a well equipped soap factory, and numerous references are cited from eighth century manuscripts referring to the sale of this compound in Italy and Spain. In the early American colonies every housewife saved all unused fat and suet as well as wood ashes, mixing the two together to make a crude but adequate product. A soapboiler is listed among the members of the English settlement at Jamestown.

I wonder why we have been obliged to live during the period when it was believed that one odor—foul or sweet—could eliminate another? Many hospitals have made the error of resorting to disinfectants that smell to high heaven instead of employing plenty of soap and water, which is far more effective. We can tell a good deal about the condition of public buildings merely from the fumes that greet our olfactory organs in the way of deodorants. If they are utilized the reason is either a mistaken notion as to their value or because elbow grease is lacking.

What is soap? Whenever fat is subjected to the chemical action of a strong alkali such as caustic soda or potash, soap is formed. Technically it is a salt of a fatty acid, and manufacturers pride themselves on achieving an article that is free from excessive alkali. In other words, only that quantity should be present which is combined completely with the fat.

As a people we are the world's champion sugar eaters. Whether this is of advantage to health need not be discussed here. We also use more soap than any nation, but at that we do not employ enough. There is so much excretion from the skin that it must be washed off periodically. Water alone will not do this. The reason is that an emulsion [suds] is required which has the power to loosen particles of dirt and enclose them within its frothy mass. Then the rôle of water becomes paramount. After a good "sudsing" and rubbing, rinsing will carry away the débris.

All brands are essentially the same, once the wrapper has been removed. Some differ in fat content, others in the amount of water, resin, free alkali, or scent. Regardless of how much perfume may be used to sweeten the bar, its sterilizing properties are identical with the unscented. The types that are termed "superfatted" are less likely to prove irritating and, in addition, they are more suitable for use with hard water.

Although most physicians and skin specialists believe in the importance of thorough washing of the skin [that is, unless it is inflamed], lather should not be left on the face or the hands for any length of time, probably not more than a minute. Thereafter rinsing and drying are absolutely essential, as a trace of suds, if left in contact with the cuticle, may cause redness. Furthermore, scrubbing the delicate surface of the body with a rough wash cloth or harsh brush is a pernicious practice.

Another cleanser is made by the action of sulfuric acid upon fats and oils. This results in the substance known as sulfonated oil, frequently used for shampooing. The material will not lather, although it will foam in hard water—even sea water. Both sulfonated olive and castor oils have been on the market for many years and are useful in scalp treatments. A fairly simple preparation for the hair may be supplied by dissolving two teaspoonfuls of tincture of green soap in a half glass of hot water and applying it with massage movements. It is then washed out well.

Our soldiers who were forced to go soapless in the trenches can testify that this household article is indeed a necessity, not a luxury.

THEY CAN.

C. R. writes: Will infected tonsils cause pains in the legs?

Will bad teeth cause head pains or sinus trouble?

REPLY.

A focus of infection may be responsible for symptoms anywhere in the body. Infected tonsils, teeth, and sinuses are prominent factors in rheumatism, heart disease, and kidney ailments. Nests of bacteria growing in the throat cannot fail to lower resistance.

USE VASELINE ON LIPS.

Mrs. H. J. M. writes: I have an accumulation of dead skin on my upper lip, that I keep biting. It is not painful or lumpy but seems more like a callus. Is it serious?

REPLY.

Constant irritation of the lips may lead to a piling up of the horny layer. Apply a bit of white vaseline several times daily, and endeavor to overcome your touching habit.

NOT HARMFUL.

Mrs. R. M. R. writes:

Is it harmful to drink two or three glasses of carbonated water [unflavored] daily?

REPLY.

Not at all. On the contrary, it is healthful.

JOINT TENANCY PROPERTY.

Chicago, July 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you tell me whether a property owned in joint tenancy by three people could be mortgaged unless signed by all three owning the real estate, even to the extent of a mortgage covered by the share of that person desiring the mortgage? It was my opinion that no mortgage to any amount could be executed unless signed by all owners in joint tenancy. R. H.

Technically, each co-owner could separately mortgage his share, but as a practical matter no mortgage lender would lend on ordinary terms, on the security of an undivided interest.

HOW THEY DO IT IN CHATTANOOGA.

Chicago, July 21.—Instead of "Courtesy week" why not "Courtesy year" like Chattanooga, Tenn.? Last year my family accompanied me to Florida. When we parked our car near our hotel a policeman approached and handed us a card. We thought we were "pinched," but what a card: "Welcome to Chattanooga; the Town Is Yours," etc. "High spots" of the city printed on the card. "Citizens all ready to help you for the asking."

Can you imagine our pleasure. Then again this winter the same treatment was reported by my wife and family. Result, our route is permanently set via Chattanooga in the future.

Let our Chicago officials start the same thing. It will permeate among our citizens and Chicago will become known as the courtesy city of the country and 50 per cent of our accidents will be eliminated. STANLEY H. KNIGHT.

JESSE JONES AND THE BANKS.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 21.—I note that Jesse H. Jones, head of the R. F. C. is riding the banks for not making more loans to business. This is just a little more New Deal propaganda. Any sensible man knows that banks are as anxious to make loans as any one. It seems to be the politicians' stock in trade nowadays to make business and industry the goat for all the ills that flesh is heir to.

I am reminded of the 100 million dollar loan the Great Northern railroad made two or three years ago in which it was reported that the big bankers had arranged to take care of this loan for the railway company at an interest rate of 4½% or 5%. It was stated that Mr. Jones wrote to the president of the road that he would be a sucker to pay this rate of interest; that the government would make it 3% interest which was done. And they took this business away from the banks!

If big and little business were not strangled by taxes and government regulation I believe that at least half of the unemployed would be back at work.

C. J. MCCARTHY.

RAIL TRAVEL NOT SO BAD.

Chicago, July 21.—I was interested in the letter you published, "Bus and Rail Costs," by "An Ex-R. R. Conductor."

After reading it one must accept without reservation the "ex" to mean antedating the present decade. The writer and family use the facilities of the railroads and find very comfortable air conditioned equipment.

If ex-R. R. Conductor will pay a visit to any of the several large railroad stations in this city he will be ushered through trains that leave nothing wanting in the way of comfort.

As for the differential in fare rates between bus and rail travel, Mr. and Mrs. Public pay the difference when they build and maintain rights of way over which the bus lines operate. Look around, "Old Conductor," don't be an "ex" all of your life. S. M. B.

JOBS AND PAROLE.

Chicago, July 20.—I heartily agree with a writer in your paper last week on the subject of publishing the names, addresses, and business of all persons taking convicts out of our prisons and giving them jobs.

There are thousands of fellows like myself who have never been on relief, WPA, or what have you, looking for honest labor and not finding it. So why get fellows out of jails for the few jobs to be had? UNEMPLOYED.

THE SOUTH IS FAVORED.

Chicago, July 21.—Your articles on favoritism to the south interest me. Here are some figures: It costs us 71 cents per hundredweight to ship carload lots of raw shelled peanuts from Alabama and other southern states to Chicago. It costs us 88 cents per hundredweight to ship peanut butter from Chicago to Montana and the far north west on the so-called canned goods carload rate of freight.

Peanut butter manufacturers located in Alabama truck the raw shelled peanuts from adjacent fields at practically no haulage expense. Those same manufacturers ship peanut butter from Montgomery, Ala., to Montana and other northwestern points at 88 cents per hundredweight.

So, we are penalized the 71 cents per hundredweight we are forced to pay on the raw shelled peanuts which amounts to approximately 20 cents a dozen on 2 pound jars of peanut butter.

The peanut butter manufacturers in Alabama have already taken a large volume of business away from us and unless this discriminatory situation is remedied it will eventually force us to close our Chicago plant. This is a specific instance of where the interstate commerce commission and governmental agencies have discriminated against Chicago in favor of the south.

THOSE BLOOI CURDLING BLASTS.

Chicago, July 21.—The recent protest in your columns against Chicago's noise is timely, but forgets the root of the trouble. The real noise making morons are the manufacturers of the blast horns, standard equipment on today's automobiles. My suggestion of a remedy would be to have a car equipped with one of these blood curdling horns make a tour every ten or twenty minutes throughout the night around the estate of its manufacturer, close to his bedroom windows, giving him a good dose at these short intervals of the product of his brain. The same performance the second night would raise his blood pressure to the tune of shattered nerves. Why it has been necessary in the last few years to bring the automobile horn down from a dignified, muffled and even soothing toot to a health destroying, life shortening blast that can be compared only with the noise of the front line trenches in the world war is beyond human comprehension. I. G.

PLURAL OR SINGULAR.

Chicago, July 22.—Maybe I am wrong but I have always understood the stadium in Grant park was Soldier Field. Your paper calls it Soldiers' field five different times on the back page as plural possessive. Your radio announcers always say Soldiers' field. I would like to know. A. B. REED.

JOB IS NOT ALL GRAVY.

Chicago, July 21.—This is an answer to the letter "Picking a job for her boy." She prefers a policeman's job.

Here are a few pointers on the life of a policeman. As for the steady pay, you are correct, but don't ever lose sight of the danger attached to the job and also the cold nights in the middle of winter when they are working and freezing, protecting you while you are tucked away in your little trundle bed, peacefully sleeping.

The average policeman drives his own car to and from work and so spends just as much money for transportation as any one else. He pays for his food, clothing, etc., the same as any one else and has to pay enormous sums for his uniforms [three different outfits—winter, spring, and summer], as well as his gun, holster, shoes, shirts and other minor details. The only donation along this line worth mentioning is the star, shield, and club. The rest costs him plenty.

Think twice before you pick a police job for your son. There is plenty of worrying and waiting for those who belong to policemen and the job is not all gravy as you seem to think.

K. H. V.

WHOLE MILK NEEDED.

Chicago, July 21.—Why does the city of Chicago allow powdered milk to be distributed to relief families instead of whole milk? Children who have been used to whole milk cannot drink this powdered milk.

I know of a good American family—father, mother, and two small children—that were never on relief until lately. The children are rather delicate as well as the mother.

They were used to having two or three quarts of milk a day until the father lost his position during this last "recession." The mother mixes the powder up into liquid milk according to directions but the children are nauseated and in consequence get no milk.

This powdered milk is all right when prescribed possibly for babies, or used in cooking or in the manufacture of certain types of foods. There is no excuse for the use of it for ordinary use in the home for children. HUGH J. DAWSON.

BIRDS AND THE FIRE HOSE.

Chicago, July 22.—To certain Waukegan residents who have employed the fire department to drive thousands of birds and their nests out of the trees:

It is too bad the poor little birds that God put on this earth to sing a song of cheer, and feed upon insects that destroy our flowers, cannot build their nests in your precious elm trees.

It is also too bad that you people have not enough fires to keep those brave firemen busy, instead of killing the birds and ruining their little homes in the trees, with fire hose and water.

BE ON YOUR BEST BEHAVIOR! IT'S COURTESY WEEK

Object: Curb Accidents by Politeness.

(Pictures on back page.)

You'd better be on your best behavior today and for the next five days—because you're going to meet a lot of Chicagoans who will be doing just that.

Starting today and continuing through July 30, Chicago will hold Courtesy week, sponsored by the Keep Chicago Safe and the Chicago New Century committees.

Throughout the week, city and park police, street car, bus, taxicab, and elevated employés all will display their best manners. And all of Chicago is expected to follow suit.

Hope to Promote Safety.

One of the results hoped for by George Fleming, secretary of the Keep Chicago Safe committee, is that courtesy will promote safety and danger of automobile accidents will be lessened.

"This is all part of a plan to show that the true Chicago spirit is one of chivalry and courtesy," Fleming said yesterday. "With trafic accidents on the decline and close to 100 less fatalities for the first six months of this year as compared to the corresponding period last year, it is believed Chicago is ready to try courtesy as a means of further reducing the toll."

The opening of the week was preceded yesterday by sermons on courtesy and safety in many churches.

Industrial Day First.

Today is "Industrial day," with meetings scheduled by various industrial groups to promote safety. Tomorrow will be "Private Car Owners' day" and Wednesday "Civic day." On Thursday, "Pedestrian day" will be marked by advice to pedestrians not to "jaywalk" or walk against trafic signals. On Friday, Boy Scout groups will be in charge of Children's day to emphasize safety in bicycle riding.

The committees hopefully have designated Saturday, the closing day, as "No Accident—No Fatality day" and hope that motorists and pedestrians both coöperate.

FORCED LANDING DAMAGES PLANE; 2 ESCAPE INJURY

Two men escaped with a bumping last night when they made a forced landing in their cabin plane in a soy bean field near Western avenue and Lincoln Highway, four miles west of Chicago Heights. The motor and landing gear were badly damaged.

Scores of motorists in Western avenue and Lincoln highway saw the forced landing. Several notified Chicago Heights and Homewood county highway police. Squads arrived to find the plane's occupants unhurt.

The pilot was Gus Maross, 216 East 24th street, Chicago Heights. His companion belligerently refused to identify himself. Maross told police his motor failed at 500 feet. The plane is owned by Walter Hines, 4146 Drexel boulevard.

ASSASSIN SLAYS MELON DEALER ON SOUTH SIDE

A deliberate, careful assassin fired four bullets last night into Nick Chiaramonte, 58 years old, in front of 310 West 24th street. Chiaramonte, a dealer in carload lots of watermelons, fell dead. The killer reëntered his automobile he had just left, drove west, and escaped.

Chiaramonte had left his home at 336 West 24th street only a few minutes before. He had walked to Princeton avenue, where he purchased two hot tamales from a street vender. He started back. The automobile, in which at least two men were seated, was at the curb. Chiaramonte was hailed and there was a brief conversation. Then the shooting began.

Relatives of the slain man, including his daughter Lucille, with whom he lived, said they knew of no reason for the shooting. The police were seeking to question his partner in the watermelon business, Tony Badala. Their place of business is at the produce terminal, 27th street and Ashland avenue.

Campbell, 4024 Oriole avenue, was the driver of the other car. Police were told that Campbell cut in front of Jenkins.

Two young men employed in Chicago were killed early yesterday when their car crashed against the side of an Illinois Central freight train eight miles southeast of Elgin. A heavy fog was blamed. The victims were Glenn Lynch, 23 years old, and Thomas Linton Jr., 22, both of West Chicago.

Won't be Rubber Stamp.

The defeat of Representative Maverick was interpreted as meaning that the voters of his district do not want what his opponent, Kilday, called a rubber stamp to represent them in Washington. Maverick, an unswerving supporter of President Roosevelt, accompanied him when his special train passed through Texas two weeks ago. Kilday received 22,851 votes to 22,262 for Maverick.

Ed Gossett of Wichita Falls, who lost the nomination to MacFarlane in 1934, was leading him tonight by 22,186 to 20,147 with a part of the vote still uncounted. A runoff election was in prospect in the 3d district where Representative Morgan G. Sanders, a Roosevelt supporter, ran third. Lindley Beckworth, 25 years old, and seeking his first term received 14,673 votes; Brady Gentry received 13,479, and Sanders, 13,275.

RUMANIA BURIES QUEEN MARIE IN TOMB ON A HILL

Throngs at Palace While Services Are Held.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, July 24.—(AP)—Rumania today paid its last respects to Dowager Queen Marie whose body was placed in the royal Rumanian tomb at Kurtea de Argesch.

Hundreds of thousands gathered about the white stone royal palace in downtown Bucharest while four metropolitans and fifty bishops of the Rumanian Orthodox church in gold and silver ceremonial robes, conducted services in the great throne room inside.

Body of Queen Marie placed in royal tomb near Bucharest.

Then the populace and thousands of soldiers lined the streets as a gun carriage drawn by six black horses bore the queen's body from the palace to the royal railroad station, about three miles distant, which is used only for ceremonial occasions.

Kneel as Train Departs.

Shortly before noon a special twelve car train left for Kurtea de Argesch in the hilly region northwest of the capital with the coffin of the queen who died last Monday in her sixty-third year at the royal summer residence at Sinaia.

Crowds of women and 300 priests kneeled while the coffin was placed on the train and remained kneeling until it had rumbled off into the distance.

Only one of hundreds of wreaths accompanied the body. It bore the name of the queen's two sons, King Carol and Nicholas who was excluded from the royal family in 1937 for refusing to give up his commoner wife.

Three stops were made so peasants and villagers might pay tribute to the queen who had wielded great influence in shaping Rumania's destiny.

Shortly after 4 p. m. Rumanian army officers, with the coffin hoisted high on their shoulders, bore the English noblewoman who became their queen to the royal Rumanian tomb.

Bells Toll All Day Long.

All day long church bells tolled throughout the land. From almost every house fluttered purple mourning banners.

Seldom, Rumanians said, had their land been so united as it was in mourning the death of the queen who devoted her energetic life to being "Rumania's ambassador to the world."

Last night her body lay in the throne room of the Bucharest palace and the royal family itself held a wake. The throne from which King Carol rules was covered with red roses. Before it rested the coffin, draped with a banner bearing the Rumanian seal and national colors. At the foot of the catafalque, on a golden cushion placed on a golden table, lay the crown which had been placed on her head in 1922.

At the four corners the flames of burning tapers gave off a scent which permeated the entire room.

Throughout the night officers of the Fourth Cavalry regiment, of which the queen was honorary commander, kept vigil. But the last watch was kept by the family itself.

Reconciled by Grief.

At 8 a. m. Carol and Nicholas, their bitter personal and political differences reconciled by their common grief, Crown Prince Michael, and Prince Friedrich von Hohenzollern, the king's uncle, stood guard until the metropolitans entered and relieved them.

The king sat alone, in front and nearest the coffin, during the services. Behind him were Marie's other children, Elizabeth, Ileana, Marie, and Nicholas. In the third row sat Prince Friedrich and Anton von Hapsburg. To the king's left were representatives of other countries, including the duke and duchess of Kent of England and Prince Paul of Jugo-Slavia.

In the palace court yard the gun carriage waited. As the coffin was brought into the bright sunlight distant cannon fired a salvo of seventy-five shots. Dozens of planes circling overhead dipped in salute. The piercing notes of trumpets were accompanied by the roll of a hundred drums.

Scatter Flowers Over Bayonets.

The six black horses started at a slow pace, followed by the king and male members of the royal family on the procession through scorching streets.

Many women scattered armfuls of red flowers, tossing them over the glittering bayonets of soldiers who lined the three mile route as the gun carriage approached.

The cortège passed through Rumania's arch of triumph and there divided. Only the gun carriage passed under the arch, approaches to which ordinarily are closed. Only Queen Marie's husband, King Ferdinand and Marshal Foch of France have passed under it in life.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

Grapes Killed by Frost

July 24, 1938.

Wild grape vines that climb over trees and fences at the Du Page county farm will furnish few grapes for jellies and jams this fall. Frosts in May killed all the foliage on the vines. New leaves have grown out, but only a few of the vines have any grapes on them.

Wild Grapevine on Red Haw Tree.

Six kinds of woody vines grow wild in the woods and in shady places along fence rows at the farm. Grapes are the most common. The others are poison ivy, Virginia creeper, bittersweet, honeysuckle, and green briar.

More than twenty species of wild grapes grow in the United States and they are widely distributed in wooded regions. Their abundance along the eastern coast gave rise to the historical legend of the vineyards found there by the Norsemen nearly a thousand years ago when these men are said to have called the country Vineland.

Most of the cultivated grapes grown in eastern United States were developed from wild vines found in the forests. Hundreds of different varieties have been obtained by crossing native species. The wild species commonly called fox grape has furnished more of the cultivated varieties than any other single species. Some of the better known ones derived from the fox grape are Concord, Catawba, Dracut Amber, Moore's Early, Ives, and Red Giant.

The wild grape vines at the farm belong to the species known as summer grape. This species is distinguished by large vines that often climb to the tops of tall trees. Vines of the fox grape are more likely to trail near the ground on shrubs, low trees, or fences. Fruit of the summer grape is small and usually matures in September and October. Fox grapes are larger, sometimes being nearly the size of cultivated varieties. All wild grape vines have much the same appearance as the domesticated varieties seen in vineyards. The chief difference is the smaller grapes of the wild species.

Grape vines often grow so rank as to injure the trees they climb by cutting off part of the light from the trees' leaves. The vines are not parasites in the sense of taking food directly from the trees on which they grow—they only use the trees for support as they climb up to reach the sunlight, hanging on to the bark and limbs by small tendrils.

The grape vine in the accompanying photograph is growing on a small red haw tree. Although the tree has been virtually smothered by the vine for several years, it still is green and growing. Located in an open space, the tree manages to push its twigs through the thick cluster of vines so that its leaves may develop in the sunlight.

The wild grape is a hardy plant and often is used for landscaping where it is allowed to ramble over trellises and arbors. The highly flavored, acid fruit makes excellent jelly and jam and sometimes is used for making wine. Small boys in rural areas still learn to smoke by taking their first puffs from a piece of wild grape vine. Children still use the vines for swings and for practice on trapeze performing.

D. F. KELLY RITES AWAIT DELAYED RETURN OF BODY

Funeral services for Dennis F. Kelly, veteran Chicago business and civic leader, will be held in Chicago early next month, after his body is returned from Bergen, Norway, where he died Saturday. Charles Vogel of Milwaukee, Mr. Kelly's son-in-law, said yesterday that he will confer this week with Mayor Kelly and other civic leaders on arrangements.

Mr. Vogel received word from Norway yesterday that government regulations had delayed forwarding the body to Southampton, England. Thus it will not be put aboard the French liner Normandie sailing from Southampton Wednesday, as had been planned. A later boat will be selected.

Mrs. Irene Sullivan Kelly, who was with her husband when he died, and Mrs. Myrtie N. Whipple of Evanston, a friend of the family, will accompany the body.

Mr. Kelly, who died of pneumonia, was 69 years old. He began his business career as a department store cash boy. In 1923 he became manager of the Fair store and president in 1925, retiring last April. He was a director of many charitable and civic organizations.

ROBOT BALLOONS GO ALOFT TO GET WEATHER DATA

Eventually little robot balloons that send radio messages from the upper atmosphere will displace aviators who make trips aloft to gather data for the United States weather bureau.

"The devices are now in use at several stations," Forecaster C. A. Donnel said last night. "They are called radiometeorographs. They can be sent to heights greater than those practicable for aviators. Also they can be sent up at any time, regardless of weather. The messages they send back are caught on receiving sets at the stations.

"It has been found that the devices, which cost about $25 each, can be equipped with parachutes. These ease the descent and the delicate instruments are unharmed on landing Most of them are recovered and turned in to the stations. Chicago still has its observations taken from a plane, but in a year or two the balloons may be used exclusively."

PROGRAM TO AID UNATTACHED U. S. WOMEN IS URGED

Washington, D. C., July 24.—(AP)—A nation-wide rehabilitation program for the "unattached, jobless, penniless" woman of 40, now existing on public relief, was proposed to Secretary of Labor Perkins today by Mary Anderson, director of the women's bureau of the labor department.

Miss Anderson recommended that such women be given medical and hospital care and occupational training.

A survey of 604 unattached, jobless women on relief in Chicago in the spring of 1937, her report said, showed that one-fourth were totally disabled, nearly two-thirds partially disabled, one in seven had a mental illness, and two-fifths were separated or divorced from husbands. Their relief income averaged $22.44 a month.

Eleanor Wilson to Be Bride of Samuel Lynde

BY JUDITH CASS.

OVER the week-end at their summer home at Les Cheneaux, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. Morris Karl Wilson announced the engagement of their younger daughter, Eleanor, to Samuel Adams Lynde II., son of Cornelius Lynde and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lynde of Winnetka.

Although the Wilsons and the Lyndes are Winnetka neighbors, most of their friends will be surprised to learn of the engagement, which was made known at a dinner-dance. It is only a year since Miss Wilson finished her schooling at Rosemary Hall. She was introduced to society last September at a dinner-dance given jointly by her parents and the John R. Shumans at the Indian Hill club. Miss Margery Shuman bowed at the same party.

In the last few weeks Miss Wilson has been a bridesmaid twice. She was maid of honor at the wedding of her sister, Leslie, to Roger Sherman, and a bridesmaid at the wedding of Miss Fidelia Richards to William Winston Roper Jr. Mrs. Sherman is called Butter by her friends and her sister is more intimately called Teenie. They are nieces of Hugh R. Wilson, United States ambassador to Germany.

Mr. Lynde, who is engaged in business in Chicago, is a graduate of Yale university. He prepared for college at Lawrenceville where he and his stepbrother, Frederick E. Janney, were classmates. The announcement of the engagement of Mr. Janney, who is an ensign in the navy, to Miss Ethel Wanner of La Jolla, Cal., was made early this month.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Lynde were in Les Cheneaux for the week-end. The Samuel Lyndes are in the White mountains for their usual summer sojourn.

Mrs. Houghteling to Entertain Guests.

Commander and Mme. Pierre Benech of France will spend tomorrow and Wednesday visiting Mrs. James Lawrence Houghteling in Winnetka. Mr. Houghteling will not be here during their visit as he returned last week to Washington, where he is commissioner of immigration. He expects to return to Winnetka early in August for a couple of weeks.

Mrs. Houghteling will give a small dinner in her home tomorrow night for her guests.

Miss Peggy Houghteling will have a Chatham Hall classmate, Miss Katharine Lafell of Massachusetts, visiting her this week, and she will entertain for Miss Lafell during the week. Late in August Miss Houghteling will visit Miss Lafell in Massachusetts, and later will join her family in Washington for a short while before returning to Chatham Hall.

Miss Janet Musselman and Miss Sally Crowder, who were graduated from Pine Manor in June, are giving a dinner at the Indian Hill club Thursday, Aug. 4, for a classmate, Miss Betty Jane Marsellus of Syracuse. Miss Marsellus, who visited Miss Musselman and her parents, Dr. and Mrs. George H. Musselman, a year ago, is arriving next Monday to spend two weeks. Miss Crowder and Miss Musselman were debutantes last fall. They will return east with Miss Marsellus to visit at her family's summer home on Lake Ontario.

William Millers Take House in Nonquit.

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Miller have gone to Nonquit, Mass., where they have taken a house for two months. Their son, Joseph S. Miller, went east last month. His sister, Mrs. Albert L. Sise, who lives in Wellesley Hills, Mass., has been keeping house for him. Young Mr. Miller, Mr. Sise, and his brother, Hubert Sise, have been having good luck in the sailing races at Nonquit.

Mrs. Russell Lord and her two daughters, the Misses Betty and Kathleen Lord, arrived yesterday in Lake Forest from a trip to England and France. They will occupy the Lawrence Scudders' house for the rest of the summer.

Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen and her daughter, Mrs. Justin Dart, flew to Los Angeles last Thursday. They will return home next week.

The senior Mr. and Mrs. Robert J.

Rowe, is an active member. Kitty and her sister, Evelyn, will go abroad to school in September.

Move to Build Country Club Home for Aged

Plans for a country club home for elderly men and women with assured incomes were described yesterday. The plans were submitted to Circuit Judge William J. Fulton in Geneva by William George, trustee of the estate of the late Fannie Bishop Henderson.

Mrs. Henderson, a widow, died in 1931 at the age of 77. She left the bulk of her $600,000 for the establishment of an old people's home. Lionel R. Barbour, Detroit attorney, sought the estate on the ground of an alleged common law marriage with her, but lost his case in the federal court in 1936.

The home would be built on the 260 acre farm near Aurora founded by Mrs. Henderson's father, the late William W. Bishop. Trustee George petitioned the court Saturday for permission to go ahead with the project.

Instead of using only the Henderson funds the trustee plans to accept building contributions ranging from $2,540 to $1,861 from each person over the age of 60 who desires admittance. They would also pay $60 a month from some source of assured income, such as an annuity.

In this way a "retirement residence" costing more than $1,000,000 could be established. It would offer complete hospital and medical care for the residents, as well as occupational therapy to replace their working tasks with hobbies.

The country club home is designed for that class of retired persons who do not need charity, yet do not have enough money for complete security.

Unlike some earlier homes, this one would not call for assignment of assets or income of entrants beyond the building contribution and $60 a month maintenance requirement.

Ravinia Hails Bolero Finale by Goossens

BY CECIL SMITH.

The mounting frenzy of Ravel's "Bolero" brought to a close Eugene Goossens' term as guest conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Ravinia Park yesterday afternoon. The applause of the audience was fortified by a vigorous fanfare from the members of the orchestra, followed by an animated exchange of amenities between the conductor and John Weicher, the concert master.

Mr. Goossens' final program gave the audience much to think about and quite a good deal to get excited about. Two works by American composers, both of which had been played in Chicago before, were granted the opportunity—so unfortunately rare—of being heard for a second time. They were the Second Symphony of Felix Borowski, noted Chicago musicologist, and the slow movement from the First, or "Romantic," Symphony by Howard Hanson of Rochester, N. Y.

Mr. Borowski's symphony is exceptionally interesting from first to last. Its musical vocabulary may not accurately be called contemporary, to be sure. But neither is it a rehash of the nineteenth century German verbosities so many composers of the older generation are prone to fancy. In style it is indebted almost wholly to pre-war French sources—Massenet, early Debussy, early Rousel, and Henri Rabaud. These resources have not been exploited to death hereabouts, nor do they lead a composer into a mood of self-important rhapsodying.

The single movement from Mr. Hanson's early symphony, written in 1922, perhaps does not do him justice. At any rate it is pallid music, lacking in originality and full of transparent artifice.

Mendelssohn's gracious Fingal's Cave Overture, conceived by the conductor with unusual finesse and delicacy, opened the concert. After the intermission the Hanson movement was surrounded by two Ravel pieces, the seldom played "Valses Nobles et Sentimentales" and the "Bolero."

The waltzes—a string of eight of them, satirically treated—sound like a study for the popular "La Valse" and are less good program material, despite the aristocracy of workmanship with which they are written. Along with the "Bolero," Mr. Goossens gave them superlative performances and strengthened the impression that he is, when all is said and done, a conductor of major rank.

Looking at Hollywood by Ed Sullivan

The Week's Wash

Hollywood, Cal., July 24.—Douglas [Nonstop] Corrigan, who says he doesn't want a picture contract, is asking Warner's for $100,000. . . . He won't get it, as they believe that his publicity is already on the downgrade. . . . Once upon a time if a fellow flew the Atlantic in a $900 plane he'd have been an immortal. . . . Today we are living so rapidly that he's lucky to remain a nine day wonder. . . . Maybe it's progress. . . . Deaths of Wendy Barrie's young sister and Anatole Friedland yesterday shocked the profession.

Norma Shearer's friends are urging her not to play "Scarlett" in "Gone with the Wind" on the ground she has everything to lose, nothing to gain. . . . Now it's Paula Stone with Wayne Morris. . . . She's cute. . . . The Mildred [Babe] Didriksen-George Zaharias wedding plans confirm the scoopee in this space. . . . Fredric March laid up for repairs, a streptococci infection of the larynx. . . . Hollywood theaters are playing Hedy La Marr's "Ecstasy" day and date with her "Algiers." . . . "Ecstasy" is really very dull stuff and less revealing than any night club show at the Chez Paree or the Paradise.

The movies will fight the box office slump by buying $500,000 extra in newspaper advertising. . . . Everybody in Hollywood, including studios and business establishments, delighted that the Inglewood racing season has ended. . . . It demoralized the town and took about $16,500,000 out of circulation. . . . Wonder when Will Hays will step in and put the kibosh on it?

Eleanor Powell with Billy Seymour at the Benny Fields' closing night. . . . No night club performer ever has clicked so solidly with the Hollywood celebs as Fields. . . . Mary Howard will become Mrs. Ned Marin. . . . The Anita Murray-Bill Stutz engagement has curdled. . . . She's of the Hearst clan. . . . Is "Says My Heart" a bit reminiscent of Gershwin's "Tell Me More"? . . . Well, that Gershwin wasn't bad. . . . Myron Selznick will bankroll Ernst Lubitsch's new production venture, with Lubitsch sharing in the profits. . . . Selznick intends to bankroll half a dozen of his agency clients and form production units. . . . It sounds very smart, as the industry always will be in the market for pictures expertly made.

Norman Krasna and pretty Margaret Tallichet, Texas eyeful, making it a habit. . . . Aside to Harry Rapf, M-G-M: Please send me $10. . . . Bert Lahr suddenly has clicked in the major manner out here with "Zaza," his current rôle, and "Wizard of Oz" his next. . . . With Bobe Hope a smash hit at Paramount it seems Broadway comics are getting their desserts finally. . . . Have Paramount and Isa Miranda called it off? . . . The Tullulah Bankhead Emerys in town. . . . That red head with Antony Rivers is Judith Rutherford. . . . Rivers will take over the Valentino rôle that the late Jack Dunn was to have played. . . . The actress who excited this column's comments via her scene in "Alexander's Ragtime Band" [she is the mother in the audience closeup] is Cecil Weston, a South African. . . . And plenty good, too. . . . If there was an academy award for the brilliant discharge of a "bit" performance, that closeup would win it for her because not even the great stars have so brilliantly projected a mother's anguish. . . . With perhaps the exception of Marjorie Main in the stage version of "Dead End."

Phil Harris and his band are busting records on tour. . . . Latest was at Kansas City. . . . Jock and Liz Whitney at La Maze's with Errol Flynns. . . . Jessica Pepper and Maxie Rosenbloom are making it a habit. . . . The John Barrymores will reach New York in September to start rehersing for the Brock Pemberton show and radio shots.

Simone Simon, whose 20th Century-Fox option has not been picked up, is negotiating for a French picture contract . . . bad rôles hurt her here, but she is just about ready to click. . . . Can't understand why companies spend a fortune in exploiting players, then turn 'em loose. . . . Roscoe Ates' daughter, Dorothy, is making the spots with an Hawaiian night club mogul. . . . Rufus Le Maire's birthday party provoked a lot of gag telegrams . . . one of them was: "Who says the old gray Lemaire ain't what he used to be?" . . . June Knight, eight-carat blonde, goes into the Gaxton-Moore show. . . . "Snow White" has cracked all London records, playing for twenty-two weeks . . . that's a career. . . . "Bluebard's Eighth Wife," which was just so-so in this country, has stayed twenty weeks in Copenhagen. . . . Shannon Dean is negotiating an N. B. C. contract from her hospital bed. . . . Good Morning!

This picture is dedicated to the men who are giving their all toward making air transport service safer and pleasanter for passengers.

It is a vigorous and exciting movie, its fiction interestingly colored with a lot of authentic information.

Its romance concerns two crack flyers and the girl both love. Action occurs on flying fields, high above the clouds, and in lonely, snowbound mountains where a great plane, pioneering an air trail, crashes.

The leading men, Richard Dix and Chester Morris, are old-timers, well beloved, and they turn out craftsmanlike performances. The leading woman, Joan Fontaine, is a pretty and able newcomer. She's a wee bit saccharine and self-conscious, but she displays a lot of enthusiasm and keeps you liking her. . . .

That splendid veteran actor, Harry Carey, qualifies nobly as a hardbitten air corps commander.

While "Sky Giant" isn't one of the greatest aviation pictures ever made, it IS a consistently interesting and well presented production.

See you tomorrow.

SYNOPSIS.

On board the S. S. Panama Queen, sailing from Los Angeles to New York, via Panama, are Anne Sydney, who has a part in a Broadway play, and her crippled and embittered sister, Mena; Arnold Vernon, elderly, rich English motion picture producer, and his coldly beautiful wife, Claire; Isobel Butler, who has a stateroom next to the Vernon suite, and hopes to get in pictures through him; Alex Reed, young surgeon returning to work after two years' illness; and gossipy Mrs. Panting. Isobel meets and arouses Vernon's interest. Anne and Alex are mutually attracted. Mena spitefully tells Alex that Anne is a heartless flirt. Pride causes Anne to hold herself aloof from him. Dr. Neil Andrews, a friend of Alex's, joins the ship in Mexico. He wants to get married and thinks Anne meets his ideals. Isobel and Arnold Vernon fall in love. He tries to buy his freedom from Claire. When she refuses he threatens to make a new will disinheriting her. The ship fights through a terrific hurricane. Isobel finds Vernon in her cabin, unconscious, hit by a storm tossed trunk. She sends Claire to him and struggles to find a doctor. Claire takes a loaded pistol, wrapped in a towel, from the purser's suite and shoots her husband, leaving the weapon in Isobel's wardrobe. She then tells Alex she found her husband wounded in Isobel's cabin. Flagg, the purser, reveals that the day before Vernon had made a new will leaving everything to Isobel. Alex operates on Vernon. The captain starts an inquiry.

INSTALMENT XXXI.

THE EMERALD RING MYSTERY.

Flagg knew that the news about Arnold's new will was a shattering surprise to Isobel. She was paralyzed with astonishment—her mouth opened to speak—but no sound came. Her hands went up and locked over her heart as if she could subdue its sudden wild drumming in her chest.

"Come now, young lady. I have other things to attend to——"

"I don't believe he did such a thing. It's preposterous—impossible."

Capt. MacKenzie glanced at the purser. "Tell her, Mr. Flagg."

"That's right, Miss Butler. I helped him—the night we sailed from Colon and Cristobal."

"O," she said helplessly. "I don't understand it. I don't want it—I wouldn't take it."

"Do you still ask us to believe there was nothing between you and this unfortunate gentleman?"

Isobel's chin went up with a proud lift. "I still say there was not. I have discussed my ambitions with him and he promised to help me to get on. He knew my circumstances——"

"And you think this was sufficient reason for him to enrich you to the extent of his entire estate and leave his own wife destitute?"

"Then she pushed me out and shut the door on me."

"I think he must have been quarreling with her and had this drawn up to show her, but with no intention to let it stand——"

"Now we're getting somewhere. Quarreling about you?"

Isobel glared at him. "I won't answer another question. You have no right to ask them."

"You know I have the right to keep you under restraint if I see fit, Miss Butler?"

"You can do what you damn well like, but you can't make me talk." She got up from the chair then and walked to the door.

"Your attitude is very much against you, Miss Butler. It is only just to warn you——"

She went without waiting to hear him finish—without answering him, and slammed the door behind her. "That's the one," said the captain. "I knew it! It's as clear as daylight. She goes down, finds him prostrate, remembers your pistol and thinks she has only to fetch Mrs. Vernon down afterward and it will naturally be blamed on the wife."

"There's the stewardess to those rooms," contributed Ainslee. "She'd know if there was any funny business. They always know what's going on."

Edith Fitch arrived looking considerably worried. She was a thin, quick, middle aged woman with a perpetually harassed expression. But something more than her usual anxiety about educating her daughters on her meager salary and uncertain tips was agitating her now. "I had meant to come and see you, sir," she said breathlessly.

"So you have something to tell us?"

"Yes, sir. It's been worrying me all morning."

She put her hand in the pocket of her apron and produced a blazing, oblong emerald ring. The captain whistled, picked it up from the table and turned it in his fingers.

"Well, it ought to be easy to find whose this is."

"But I know whose it is, sir. It isn't lost. It was Mrs. Vernon's. She gave it to me——"

"Gave it to you?"

All three men jumped and stared at the stewardess. "Yes, early this morning I found a wet face towel on the floor of her cabin. I picked it up and said, 'This is funny—it came out of Mr. Flagg's room.' Mrs. Vernon was in her drawing room. She looked through the door and when she saw the towel she nearly passed out.

"She said, 'But how extraordinary—how could it have got there?' I said, I don't know, but I'll have to tell the captain, because of what happened last night. She grabbed my wrist and said, 'No, no; it's some fantastic accident—but it couldn't be explained. Don't give me any more trouble than I have already. Take it away and say nothing—and take this.' She drew the ring off her finger and pressed it in my hand. Then she pushed me out of the suite and shut the door on me."

"But how did you know the towel came from Mr. Flagg's room?"

Miss Fitch looked at Flagg apologetically. "He has a fountain pen he uses with green ink and one with red. He always wipes them on the towels. This has the red and green stains on it——"

"Now, Miss Fitch, tell me—have you noticed anything going on between Mr. Vernon and any other passenger which should not be going on?"

"No, sir. But once or twice I've noticed the smell of cigar smoke in Miss Butler's stateroom."

"That's positively all?"

"Yes, sir."

"You may go now. Say nothing whatever of this or anything you know to any one else on the ship. Understand?"

Mr. Flagg could hardly conceal his triumph when the stewardess had gone. "There's you case, captain. Exactly what I thought. She picked up the gun with the towel, forgot she was holding it, too scared to take it back, tried to wash the powder marks off it in her room. They must have been quarreling beforehand."

"We must question her again," Capt. MacKenzie said judicially. He placed the ring in the middle of the table on a square of white paper.

But Claire was prepared for shock and had gathered all her forces. When she returned to the chartroom and saw the ring on the table, she exclaimed: "O, where was it? Thank God, you found it!"

"So you lost it?" inquired the captain incredulously.

"Why, yes. The morning we left Panama. I told the stewardess to search. I was afraid it was stolen."

"Curious you didn't report the loss of such a valuable piece of jewelry——"

Claire's face showed admirable distress. "I had an excellent reason. I was afraid my stewardess had stolen it. I wanted to give her a chance to pretend to find it. I left it on my dressing table while we were passing through the canal. It was gone when I came down to prepare for lunch. And I knew she was desperately anxious to make money for her girls."

The captain looked shaken. "Mr. Flagg, tell Mrs. Vernon Miss Fitch's story."

Flagg told her curtly, intently watching her face. It showed nothing but surprise and righteous indignation. "Not a word of truth in it. It's perfectly preposterous."

"Then how do you account for her restoring the ring?"

Claire did not hesitate. "Money. Miss Butler has been bribing her. The ring might be traced. Money would be safe."

Capt. MacKenzie let out a long, shuddering breath and got up.

Claire rose, too. "I don't think you've any right to withhold my property," she said peremptorily. "Give it to me, please."

Capt. MacKenzie's temper was fraying.

Flagg saw his light hazel eyes narrow. He knew what it meant. The old man was coming 'round to the right point of view. The captain said tersely, "That will be all, Mrs. Vernon."

GASOLINE ALLEY—EVERYBODY HAPPY

COME ON, HAP! BREAK DOWN AND TELL ME HOW YOU HAPPENED TO LIGHT ON A FARM.
TO TELL YOU THE TRUTH, IT WAS DAD'S IDEA. HE ANSWERED AN AD AND HERE I AM.
7-25
AN AD FOR A HIRED MAN?
NO, AN AD FOR A SUMMER BOARDER I WAS TO WORK IF I FELT LIKE IT, BUT I HAVEN'T FELT LIKE IT.
THAT SOLVES THE PROBLEM AS TO MR. SIZER. I COULDN'T FIGURE HE'D HAVE A NON-PRODUCER AROUND.
IT SOLVES THE PROBLEM FOR DAD, TOO. HE DIDN'T WANT ONE AROUND, EITHER.

Ghost of First Wife Shadows This Marriage

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

It is the little things, often humorous to other people, that make tragedies in married life. If the young wife whose letter came in today could only smile to herself at her husband's absurdities she would be able to weather a trying period.

She is actually fighting a ghost. And there is nothing like a good hearty laugh to dispel the spooks.

"I am a bride of six months. Ever since we've been married my husband has been changing my appearance to that of his first wife's. On our honeymoon he made me shave my eyebrows and replace them with a penciled line like hers.

"When we came home he had me undergo an operation to reshape my nose. He took a picture of his first wife along and had the surgeon use it as a model. My new nose—is a carbon copy.

"Then he insisted I bleach my hair like hers. It is very unbecoming. It makes me look hard and is a lot of trouble to keep up. It makes me feel terribly self-conscious.

"Should I continue to ape my husband's first wife in appearance? Even if I should continue to try to please my husband couldn't I keep my own hair coloring?" MRS. L. S.

There are limits to pleasing a husband. You might suggest he part his hair in the middle or raise burnsides to look like your first sweetheart. Of course that might start a fight.

Anyhow, you'd better call a halt if you don't want your husband walking over you for the rest of your marriage. Wear your hair as you like. The trick is to do it pleasantly without any argument. Change the subject. Think pleasantly of something else until he talks himself out.

But try and take your ghostly rival lightly. You are at least sure of a faithful husband. In the course of time a lively child or two will surely bury the ghost.

Gideons Dedicate 3,000 Bibles for Use in Chicago's Hotels

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

More than 3,000 Gideon bibles which will be placed in Chicago hotel rooms were dedicated yesterday afternoon at the Congress hotel, where the 28th annual convention of the organization will close a four day session today. Paul Westberg, Chicago business man who is the moderator of the Evangelical Swedish Covenant church of America, was the principal speaker.

The late D. F. Kelly was praised last night by the Gideons at a mass meeting of the organization in Chicago temple. It was pointed out that Mr. Kelly had taken special interest in the Bible program of the Gideons and had given space in a Fair store window for a display.

The mass meeting was led by John S. Reed of Toronto, Canadian president of the organization. S. M. Sunden of Harrington Park, N. J., was installed as national chaplain last night to succeed Samuel M. Fulton of Milwaukee, Wis., who became a trustee of the organization. Samuel P. Eisenmayer of Los Angeles, Cal., was named a trustee to succeed E. F. Newburg of Rockford.

Dunham have left for California. They will spend a week in Santa Barbara and five weeks in San Francisco before returning home.

Mrs. Sydney Waud will leave next Friday for Morristown, N. J., to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Morrell. She will be away a month and when she returns will bring her two children, who went to Morristown earlier in the summer, home with her.

Mrs. George Shields III. [Carolyn Cosgrave] and her new son, John Cosgrave Shields, who was born in the Evanston hospital on July 16, are returning to their Glencoe home tomorrow. John has a brother, George IV., who will be waiting to welcome him.

Every Day Is May 1 on North Shore.

Keeping one's address book up to date is not a problem reserved for May 1 any longer, for any day is moving day along the north shore. Dr. and Mrs. Wallace D. Mackenzie and their baby daughter, who have been living on Church road, Winnetka, moved Saturday to an apartment at 765 Sheridan road, Winnetka. Thomas Lynde Dammann and his bride of last winter, the former Harle Garth, had been occupying the apartment, but they left yesterday for Nashville, where business has taken Mr. Dammann. He is a cousin of Samuel Lynde, whose engagement is news today. Dr. and Mrs. Mackenzie are planning to build their own home.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. English [Harriet Tilden] have moved from Winnetka to the Glencoe house they purchased recently from Mr. and Mrs. S. Francis Pearce Jr. Mr. and Mrs. George Schulz are new Glencoe residents. They bought Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Primley's home and now have moved into it.

The Roderick McKenzies [Helen Walcott] of Winnetka have rented their Sheridan road apartment for the summer and have gone to Highland Park to be with her parents, the Chester Howe Walcotts, in their new home. The Walcotts formerly lived in Winnetka.

The Benjamin Marshalls and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Simmons, have taken houses in Winnetka for the summer. The Marshalls are occupying Mrs. Theodore Butz's home at 596 Oak street. Mr. and Mrs. Simmons have taken Mrs. Edward P. Farwell's home at 780 Prospect avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Lon C. Hill Jr. have moved back into their home at 720 Prospect avenue, Winnetka, which was remodeled during the winter. Mr. Hill and his younger son, Owsley, have left to spend the summer in Texas. Miss Georgette Owsley Hill is a debutante of the season.

The Junior Edgewater center of the Infant Welfare society is meeting for a day in the country today at Mrs. Richard Bleloch's home in Winnetka. Swimming and badminton are on the program, with Mrs. Kenneth Broomell acting as co-hostess with Mrs. Bleloch.

The center is making plans for a panda party to be given early in November in the continental room of the Stevens hotel. The party is to be a dinner-dance. Just before she sailed for Europe Mrs. G. Hewett Williams completed arrangements for the benefit. While she is away Mrs. Frederick Price, Mrs. George Bockwinkel Jr., Mrs. Robert Sykes, Mrs. John Allen, Mrs. Bleloch and Miss Romaine Rennen are meeting frequently to discuss the event.

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: Will you kindly illustrate in your column the difference between the following two bidding situations:

| [A] | | [B] | |
|---|---|---|---|
| South | North | South | North |
| 1 spade | 2 diam's | 1 spade | 2 diam's |
| 3 spades | ? | 4 spades | ? |

"I am continually running into difficulties whenever, as South, I must choose between the two rebids noted. Also, when I am the responder in the two situations, I never am sure just what I should do. Is the four spade rebid in [B] stronger or weaker than the three spade rebid in [A]?

"Yours truly,

"Mrs. J. C. F., Toronto."

The situations that require choice between the two rebids noted above create confusion among experts as well as average players. Let us try to throw light on the matter by analyzing the following hand:

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ 6
♥ 10 9 5
♦ A J 8 4 3 2
♣ 8 6 5

WEST
♠ Q 4 3
♥ A K 7 3
♦ 9
♣ K 9 7 4 2

EAST
♠ J 10
♥ Q J 6 4 2
♦ Q 10 5
♣ J 10 3

SOUTH
♠ A K 9 8 7 5 2
♥ 8
♦ K 7 6
♣ A Q

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 spade | Pass | 2 diamonds | Pass |
| 4 spades | Pass | Pass | Pass |

This bidding is correct. South had an excellent hand to begin with, and it was improved decidedly when North's two diamond response was made. It is this latter feature that must be appreciated. If North's response had been two hearts, South's proper rebid would be, not four spades, but three spades. A two heart response would not justify South in feeling that game in spades was virtually assured. He would have to recognize the danger of losing one, or possibly two, trump tricks and, with no assurance of a diamond or club fit, would be unable to count his losers. The diamond response changes this radically. Now, although the spade [trump] situation remains the same, i. e., South still may lose two tricks, he is quite warranted in feeling that, if this bad break materializes, he still will have an excellent chance to lose only one trick in the other suits.

Generally speaking, there is this difference between the two rebids mentioned by my correspondent. In sequence [A] South's rebid requires five honor tricks if the spade suit is no better than A K x x x; four to four and one-half if there is an extra trump, and only three and one-half honor tricks if there are two extra trumps. A single jump rebid, as in this sequence, is not an absolute force, but responder is expected to bid again with about one-plus honor tricks, or with a singleton and two or three trumps, unless he already has strained to make his first response. Since this single jump rebid is not absolutely forcing, and may result in a contract for only three odd, it follows as a matter of pure logic that a triple jump rebid, as in sequence [B], must be stronger. Moreover, a triple jump rebid requires, aside from other considerations, a trump suit that can stand entirely on its own feet, requiring no support from partner.

In the illustrative hand, it will be seen that if South were to rebid only three spades over North's two diamonds, North would have a very difficult problem on his hands. Undoubtedly he would reason that he had already strained to make his original response, and it would require great optimism on his part to respond again. Thus, a virtually laydown game would be lost if South failed to jump all the way to game.

Sally to Give Party in Child Size Theater

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by the Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Like to make-believe, boys and girls? Like fairy tales and movies like "Snow White"? If you do, how would you like to see a famous old story dramatized on the stage, with boys and girls of your own age doing the acting?

On Thursday, Aug. 4, I'm going to take 100 boys and girls to the Jack and Jill theater to see "The Sleeping Beauty." The theater is a charming little playhouse with a real stage and footlights, and seats just the right size for children. Your feet won't dangle the way they do in most grown-ups' chairs. The players are a talented group of youngsters under the direction of Marie Agnes Foley, and some of them have been in the movies and on the radio.

If you want to attend this party, write me a letter, telling why you'd like to be invited. I have room for 50 boys and 50 girls and they'll be the youngsters who can convince me that they'd really and truly enjoy such a party. Be sure to write your own letter, tell me your full name, address and age, and have your letter on my desk not later than Thursday morning.

Any child is eligible to try for an invitation, even if you've been invited to previous parties. The address is Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

George Bernard Shaw Is 82 Today; Unhappy About the Whole Thing

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, July 24.—George Bernard Shaw, now recovering from a recent illness at his country home in Codlicote, is planning to spend tomorrow quietly, trying to ignore his 82d birthday.

"The worst of being 82," he said tonight, "is that people will come and congratulate me. I see no cause for congratulations on being 82."

The Malvern festival, the annual summer theatrical event dedicated to the "genius of Shaw," which for nine years opened on Shaw's birthday, has been postponed until next Monday. Shaw's new political Harlequinade "Geneva" will then lead off five nights of new plays by J. B. Priestley, C. K. Munro, Lord Dunsany, and James Bridie, but it is still uncertain whether Shaw will be able to attend the opening in accordance with his custom.

Delightfully Simple Frock

WOMAN'S AND MISS' APRON FROCK.

A house frock that is easy to make, easy to put on and take off, and equally simple to launder is nothing short of a find. Women who keep house know how many home frocks one needs to maintain a reputation for chic and another for being an excellent homemaker, both at the same time. Simplicity is the secret, and we're offering an especially nice pattern today which should fill the bill perfectly.

It's the sort of garment you slip over your head. Then you tie the sash to fit your waistline, at the same time wrapping the dress around you. Nothing could be simpler, and nothing could be smarter. All the pretty and inexpensive cottons make up beautifully in this model. No trimming is necessary, but if you like the idea of an extra bit of color, use ready made bias binding around the sleeves and neckline. Rick-rack is another splendid idea, especially if you decide to use a collar.

Style No. 3415 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The completed quilt blocks of "Rob Peter to Pay Paul" create the effect implied by the title. The material cut from the light block is transferred to the dark block, and vice versa, but it is a fair exchange, so there are no losers. This old pattern was designed years ago when red and white were the principals in any color chart. Modern taste combines sea green and white; wood violet and yellow printed material; chocolate brown and robin's egg blue. This pieced block measures 11 inches square and 63 patterns of this motif are set together to form an all-over design. A five inch border and one-half inch bias binding surround the completed blocks, and the overall dimensions are 87 by 109 inches.

For a limited period Nancy Cabot offers ten quilt patterns of her own choice at a price of 10 cents for the group (12 cents by mail). Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

Eyes Demand Exercise if They Are to Retain Their Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Do you use your eyes for pleasure? Do you enjoy the cloud effect above a picturesque city skyline or the fine lines of a tall building? In the country, are you the first to spy the golden oriole in the treetops or the delicate charm of a wild flower hidden at your feet? Or do you go your way, staring at nothing, absorbed in your own thoughts?

Eyes that are alert and seeing are much more healthy and beautiful. Eyes actually are rested by exercise. It is holding the eyes in a fixed position that causes strain. And it's eyestrain that carves the scowl between the brows and produces the crow's feet that are so difficult to eradicate.

Indians, trained to observe the signs on the ground, the bushes, the trees and sky, have marvelous sight. We can't all go in for woodlore, although days in the country among the restful green of trees and foliage often seem to improve vision and certainly are relaxing. But, at least, we can get in the habit of looking and observing. We can exercise our eyes.

According to one authority, fixed staring at nothing is definitly harmful. Those of us who must do close work should pause a second, glance out of the windows, look at the building far away in the horizon. As we walk down the street, we should look up and around and see what we can see. It is surprising how seldom people bother to look farther than a few feet from their noses. Too many of us never see any farther than our desk, typewriter or the printed page.

Rolling the eyes gives them a much needed change of position. Here's a good exercise. Close the eyes. Then turn them right, up and then left and down, six times in succession. It is very helpful and refreshing and takes only a few minutes.

If you are going out in the evening after a hard day, try this: Wet two pads of cotton with witchhazel, put them on your eyelids and lie down for half an hour. The relaxation will tone up your body in general. The stimulation of witchhazel will make your eyes bright and clear and remove that fatigued, glazed, bloodshot appearance.

Here Are Good Books for Teen Age Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

A fire, an easy chair, and a book may be your idea of reading bliss—if a man, add a pipe and perhaps a dog. But to our teen-age children winter evenings usually mean "slews of homework" instead of cozy leisure; and it's during the long summer days of vacation that they can revel in reading, in a porch swing, or under a beach umbrella; stretched out on the grass or in an old-timey hammock.

For young people who want good reading that is also pleasant, or thrilling, or full of fun—or for parents who need suggestions, here is a list of book [many are adult fiction] that high school boys and girls have found enjoyable.

"Kim," by Rudyard Kipling.
"Plain Tales from the Hills" [and all his short stories], by Rudyard Kipling.
"Barrack Room Ballads and Departmental Ditties," by Kipling.

An adventure group comes next:
"Sea Wolf," by Jack London.
"Voyage of the Martin Connor," by Oswald Kendall.
"Derelict," by Charles Bernard Nordhoff.
"Jim Davis," by John Masefield.
"Captain Blood," by Sabatini.
"Cappy Ricks," by Peter B. Kyne.
"Greenmouth," by John Buchan.
"Cruise of the Snark," by London.
"Treasure Island," by Robert Louis Stevenson.

Good detective or murder mysteries come next:
All the Sherlock Holmes stories by A. Conan Doyle.
All the Father Brown stories by Gilbert Chesterton.
"The Bishop Murder Case," by S. S. Van Dine.
All the Charlie Chan stories by Earl Derr Biggers.

Now for a few that are not fiction:
"Louisa May Alcott—Her Life, Letters and Journals," by Eduah Dow Cheney.
"Life of the Bee," by Maurice Maeterlinck.
"Book of Pirates," by Howard Pyle.
"Life with Father," by Clarence Day.

Now for novels, current, modern and "classic":
"Lorna Doone," by Richard D. Blackmore.
"The Count of Monte Cristo," by Alexander Dumas.
"The Three Musketeers," by Alexander Dumas.
"The Virginian," by Owen Wister.
"To Have and To Hold," by Mary Johnston.
Owen Johnson's stories of Lawrenceville.
"Huntingtower," by John Buchan.
Jeeves stories by P. G. Wodehouse.

Let's leave definite fiction classification for a few minutes and jot down a variety of titles:
"A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," by Mark Twain.
"Men of Iron," by Howard Pyle.
"The Arabian Nights."
"So Big," by Edna Ferber.
"Cimarron," by Edna Ferber.
"The Scarlet Pimpernel," by Baroness Orczy.
"Scaramouche," by Rafael Sabatini.
"Cranford," by Mrs. Gaskell.
"The Little Minister," and most of Sir James M. Barrie's other novels.
"Jane Eyre," by Charlotte Brontë.
"Forest Lovers," by Maurice Hewlett.
"Bambi," by Felix Salten.
"The Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc," by Mark Twain.

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

There are three kinds of picnickers: Those who insist upon food ready to eat when the party reaches the picnic grounds; those who want nothing to be ready, but prefer to cook it all on the spot, and the majority who like something hot, but are too hungry to wait long for it to cook. This latter group takes along a cooked dish which may be reheated over an open fire, or food that will cook quickly enough to avoid delay in eating.

Spanish rice prepared at home and reheated in a little fat at the picnic is one of the most satisfying dishes of this kind. Since twice as much is eaten as would be eaten indoors, usually, the cook is smart if she prepares a double recipe.

SQUAW CORN.

"Squaw corn" is another outdoor treat. Canned corn, eggs and bacon are tucked among the picnic supplies, along with a long handled skillet. First the bacon is fried, then some of the fat is poured off and the corn and eggs are scrambled quickly together in the pan. The bacon is broken into bits and stirred into the mixture. It's well to use the salt and pepper shakers a bit, too.

POTATOES, STEAK AND ONIONS IN A SKILLET.

Canned potatoes are a convenience in making this dish quickly. Or potatoes may be boiled at home and taken along in their jackets. Heat bacon fat or cooking oil in the skillet, and slice into it several large onions. When they have begun to brown add hamburg steak to the pan and stir it well to get it brown. Slice the cooked potatoes into the mixture, add salt and pepper, and serve as soon as the meat is well browned.

BAKED BEAN RABBIT.
[A Picnic Special.]

¼ cup butter or bacon fat
2 onions
1 quart tomatoes [canned]
2 one pound cans beans
1 pound American cheese
Salt and pepper.

Slice onions into butter and fat and cook until lightly browned. Add tomatoes and let bubble for several minutes. Add beans and cubes of cheese, and cook until beans are hot and cheese has melted. Add seasonings to suit the taste and serve hot.

There are many other picnic food suggestions in the mimeographed booklet, "Let's Have a Picnic," on sale for 3 cents at Tribune Public Service offices, Tribune Tower lobby and 1 South Dearborn street. It's 5 cents if you order it by mail. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Last year, when it first came on the market, we were greatly smitten with the carbonated cologne that came in a miniature siphon bottle. It struck us as the height of frivolity and luxury to squirt cologne, wonderfully perfumed and sparkling like champagne, all over the person and the place. It was the height of luxury, too, because it was plenty expensive.

This summer the price has been cut by more than half. Apparently they've found some way to manufacture that ingenius bottle much more inexpensively than they could at first. It's the same size and still siphons like a charm, and the cologne is the same, but the price mark is right down where us poor but luxury loving girls can touch it.

The cologne comes in three fragrances. There is a rich, ultra-luxurious one for wear with your swishiest clothes on the grand occasions; a very frothy, feminine one for the woman who prefers perfumes in the classic bouquet tradition, and one other that is fresh and woodsy—elegant for summer and for wear with sports clothes.

The cologne is given a great deal of pep, being charged, and dispensed exactly as seltzer would be, through a pressure-topped bottle. It's great fun to use. Remember, though, that there's a difference between a siphon and an atomizer. Don't bear down too hard on the little brass widget or you'll be deluged!

You'll get a great kick out of this cologne, and you'll like any one of the three fragrances. A bottle makes rather an exciting gift, but you'll undoubtedly want one for yourself. You won't feel wickedly extravagant if you invest, either, because these are now in the class of beauty bargains. ELEANOR NANGLE.

The Housewife

The housewife who owns a pair of good vegetable scissors becomes so fond of them she wouldn't swap them for a pearl handled carving knife! These shears are really something. They will cut lettuce or string beans or carrots or any other vegetable much more quickly than you could do the same job with a knife. They also will open jars of salad dressing or peanut butter or whatever.

And on the handle is a small prong for prying open other types of jar and bottle tops. Some have chromium frames and others are in colored enamel. EDITH WEIGLE.

2 PLANS TO TAKE ABLE BODIED OFF RELIEF LIST TOLD

Seek Jobs and More WPA Projects in State.

Twin plans to rid the direct relief rolls of all persons able to work were disclosed yesterday. One is to tighten the coördination of relief agencies and the Illinois state employment service in an effort to find jobs. The other is to start new WPA projects with the aid of relief funds.

A central intake office to receive all applications for relief will help to carry out the first plan. As an experiment in this direction, an office at 10 East 11th street will handle intake for three of the nineteen district offices.

"We want to establish closer coordination between the intake division and the employment service," said Leo M. Lyons, Chicago relief administrator.

"When a person applies for relief, it should be determined whether he is able to work. If he is, he should be sent immediately to register for a private job at the state employment office. Then he should be sent to the Works Progress administration. Direct relief should be only a backstop."

New Files Planned.

At the employment office the plan includes new cross-indexed files showing name, occupation, and last employer.

The other plan, for more WPA projects, is based upon a law passed at the special session of the legislature last month. This authorizes the spending of relief funds on federal projects with approval of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission and the governor.

Typical of the support of this plan is that indicated in a letter to the IERC from the Decatur Association of Commerce.

"For months we have been impressed with the possibility of relieving relief rolls of employables by providing materials with which they could be employed on WPA projects," it reads.

"It is our conviction that the state and townships will be able to make a substantial saving in relief expenditures by providing the WPA with building materials and other incidentals instead of buying foodstuffs for those able-bodied men and women in needy circumstances. Purchase of these materials and incidentals will make employment some place, and the foodstuffs, too, will be bought with the added purchasing power provided in this way."

20% Contribution Demanded.

The Works Progress administration requires that local governments contribute about 20 per cent of the project cost. Many public bodies were unable to do much of this because tax receipts were going for direct relief. The Decatur letter said:

"It has been said here that if half of the $340,000 spent in Decatur for relief had been available for materials and supplies, we could have removed every able-bodied person from the relief rolls and given them more than twice the income they had on relief."

Lyons, who is executive secretary of the IERC as well as Chicago relief director, said the state commission is studying the proposal carefully. It is reported that most members favor the plan.

BANDIT REACHES ONCE TOO OFTEN, AND IS CAPTURED

Hyde Park police were searching yesterday for one of the two bandits who carried things too far Saturday night with Berne McCracken, a husky mechanic of 5533 Maryland avenue. McCracken captured one of them. He was sitting in his car with Miss Margaret Bandel in front of her home at 4437 Greenwood avenue when the robbers appeared. He did not resist when one bandit demanded his wallet, but when the other reached for Miss Bandel's purse McCracken hit him. The robber struck back with a cold chisel and then they both fled, McCracken after them. The one captured identified himself as Albert Trebicky of 2933 Wentworth avenue, a WPA worker.

Thousands Play on Beach, but None Sees Boy Drown

Thousands of bathers were on the Montrose beach yesterday afternoon. But none of them saw Edward Manke, 11 years old, 2156 North Tripp avenue, when he sank. The boy's body was discovered in about three feet of water. Unavailing efforts were made to revive him with an inhalator.

Burglar Makes Grand Slam as Six Couples Play Bridge

Six couples playing bridge Saturday evening at the home of Attorney Rudolph L. Ruggles, 740 Forest avenue, Evanston, didn't hear the burglar upstairs. He took $15 and jewelry valued at $2,000. Apparently the thief climbed a drainpipe to reach a bedroom window.

Hopkins and Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, are guests of John Hertz on his farm near Cary, in McHenry county. Jones expects to return east tomorrow. They arrived Saturday to see the races at the Arlington track.

2 INTERPRETERS OF POLISH MUSIC HONORED IN PARK

Conductor and Soprano Soloist in Concert.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Two outstanding interpreters of Polish music were honored in Grant park last night when the twenty-fourth of the free lake front concerts brought Jerzy Bojanowski to the band shell as guest conductor and Valerie Krenz-Glowacka as soprano soloist.

A generous number of items from the pen of Stanislaw Moniuszko, most Polish of Polish composers [although he was partly Lithuanian!], found a place on the program along with the products of Russia, of western Europe, and of America.

In presenting the ballet music from "The Countess," a Moniuszko opera which is nowhere near so well known in the United States as his earlier "Halka," Mr. Bojanowski unearthed something which retains in certain sections the bounding, out of doors quality of Polish dance forms, yet which reveals a surprising amount of western influence. There are sequences so suave and citified that the signature of either of the Johann Strausses would not be too great a strain on our credulity.

Strengthens Good Impression.

In his conducting of this music, as well as of the miscellaneous program which preceded and followed it, Mr. Bojanowski strengthened the good impression which he has made on previous Chicago appearances. His style is simple and unaffected, with a dignified economy marking both the gestures of the man and the inflections of the music. Anything which he conducts is expressive and personal in high degree, but there are no effects dragged in for their own sake.

Mme. Glowacka, whose middle voice has an extremely attractive covered quality and whose upper octave boasts considerable brilliance sang two Moniuszko bits as well as a little song from the pen of Mr. Bojanowski himself. Her entire first group was non-Polish, with arias from "The Marriage of Figaro," "Aïda," and "I Pagliacci."

She Lives Her Music.

She has the gift of living her music, of partaking of the joyfulness or what-have-you of the song at hand. The "Bird Song" from the last named opera went with wonderful verve.

The orchestra assembled for Mr. Bojanowski included many of the best musicians of Chicago. This was his first appearance at Grant park, to which he came after four weeks as conductor of an outdoor concert series in Tulsa, Okla.

Made-to-order weather and the unusual interest of last night's program drew tens of thousands of people to the big windy auditorium by the lake.

PENN GRAFT QUIZ SPECIAL SESSION CONVENES TODAY

Harrisburg, Pa., July 24.—[Special.]—The special session of the Pennsylvania legislature, called by Gov. George Earle, will be convened here tomorrow to consider charges of graft and corruption against Earle and his administration.

The extra session is the outgrowth of bitter party strife which signalized the spring primary election campaign. Gov. Earle himself, then waging his successful campaign for the Democratic nomination for senator, was accused by Mayor Davis Wilson, his C. I. O. rival, of having borrowed large sums of money from Matthew H. McCloskey Jr., building contractor, a Democratic power, and the recipient of profitable state contracts.

Gov. Earle admitted borrowing $26,000, but said the loans were made several years ago, and could not have influenced the award of any state contracts.

BURY FARMER TODAY.

Sycamore, Ill., July 24.—[Special.]—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Walter Bright, 52 years old, a Mayfield farmer, who died yesterday. He farmed all his life in the Mayfield and Charter Grove communities.

RAIDERS SEARCH GARAGE AT HOME OF PERKINS BULL

Papers and Maps Taken from Three Autos.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., July 24.—While W. Perkins Bull was visiting last night his stock farm at Brampton, thirty miles northwest of here, raiders bent on some mysterious errand broke into the garage at the Bull residence. Bull, a solicitor, is one of the chief beneficiaries of the will of Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley, Racine, Wis., malted milk heiress.

Gardeners this morning found evidence that the garage, a large building separate from the big four story house, had been thoroughly searched.

Three automobiles kept there had been carefully examined, the seats removed and all pockets in the upholstery and all the compartments emptied of papers and maps.

Bull, notified of the incident at the farm, said he would ask city police to investigate the case as soon as he returns.

The questioning of Thomas Henry Bull, youngest son of the family, by provincial inheritance tax authorities is expected to be resumed tomorrow. Last Friday they spent three hours with him at Queens park, their headquarters.

This investigation is part of the inquiry, now almost completed, into the death of Mrs. Sidley in the Bull home July 6. Crown authorities are seeking evidence to support claims to levy succession taxes upon a portion of Mrs. Sidley's fortune of several million dollars.

SNEAD'S 207 WINS CHICAGO OPEN; GULDAHL 2D WITH 208

THREE BIRDIES ON LAST ROUND SAVE YOUNG PRO

Wehrle First Among Amateurs.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Samuel Jackson Snead, the precocious lad from the Virginia hills, is the new Chicago open golf champion. The 25 year old professional, who was an unknown in the big leagues until twenty months ago, yesterday won the second annual medal play event with a 54 hole score of 207. After having shot a 64 Saturday for a new course record on the No. 1 course at Olympia Fields, Sam yesterday shot a 73 and a 70 on the No. 4 lot.

A gallery of 7,500 was swayed between Snead and the man who finished one shot back of him. That man was Ralph Guldahl, the Texan from Madison, N. J., who holds the national and western open championships. Yesterday morning he shot a 68, which included a six and five on two par four holes. That sent him into the final eighteen with a 140, three shots behind Snead.

Birdies Beat Ralph.

By the ninth hole of the afternoon round, Guldahl was only one shot back, but he couldn't overcome the birdies Snead fired at the 12th, 14th, and 16th holes. The champion's best was eight pars and a six foot putt for a birdie at the 18th.

Snead's victory earned him first money of $1,500 and raised his earnings since Jan. 1 to $8,611, the year's high among professionals. Guldahl took away $750 for second place and Dick Metz of the Mill Road Farm course, who finished third with a 212, received $400.

The tournament sensation was the blond and likable Wilford Wehrle, 1937 western amateur champion from Racine, Wis. In the morning round, playing with Snead and Metz, Wehrle was out in 33 and needed only par in to finish two shots behind Snead. Instead, he took a 40 and went into the final round with 143. In the afternoon he shot a 71, one over par, for a 214, which enabled him to tie Ed Dudley of Philadelphia, and Lloyd Mangrum of Los Angeles, in addition to earning the first amateur prize by four strokes from Jack Hoerner of North Shore. The consensus of pros who played with Wehrle during the tournament, including Gene Sarazen, Snead, and Metz, was that he is the best amateur they have seen since Bobby Jones.

Rain Hurts Guldahl, Too.

The first three professionals in the field and Wehrle were in front at 36 holes and maintained their positions through the final round. Had it been an official 72 hole tournament, Guldahl would have won by a shot. In Friday's eighteen hole round, which was canceled by a heavy downpour late in the day, Guldahl shot a 70 on No. 4 against Snead's 72. Both had played in fair weather.

The tournament committee, headed by Maynard G. Fessenden, L. D. Rutherford, and A. W. Hale, president of the Chicago District Golf association, said last night the successful conduct of the tournament, as reflected by the attendance and the amateur entry list, warants an

WHITE SOX LOSE TO YANKS, 2 TO 0; THEN WIN, 8 TO 3

Eight Run Rally in Eighth Earns Even Break.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 24.—Thornton Lee, the jinxed White Sox lefty, this afternoon held the New York Yankees to two hits, a second inning double and a third inning single, but suffered his sixth loss of the year, 2 to 0, on two successive two base errors at the start of the second inning. The Sox grieved about the tough first game for the first seven innings of the second, then surged with an eight run eighth inning and went on to an 8 to 3 victory for Monty Stratton, although John Whitehead pitched the last two innings. Johnny Murphy was charged with his first defeat of the year.

A crowd of 35,946 witnessed the end of a rain-soaked week of baseball inactivity in Greater New York.

Thornton Just Unlucky.

The Chicago setback in the first game was the second this year against the Yankees in which Lee wasted great pitching because of zero offensive support. The New Yorkers beat him, 1 to 0, on Pitcher Spud Chandler's eighth inning homer in Chicago on May 21.

The two runs of the first game were made on Boze Berger's two base fumble of Joe Di Maggio's pop fly, followed immediately by Lee's own two base throwing error and a double by Bill Dickey which came down on the right foul line.

Lefty Gomez, in winning the first game, rang up his eighth victory and his fifth straight. He was good in the jams, as attested by the fact that nine Sox were left on bases in the first five innings, and one was thrown out at the plate.

Mike Takes a Walk.

There were no jams in the last four innings. Mike Kreevich, who walked with two out in the seventh, was the only Sox to get on base after the fifth. The Yankees left only three on base in the entire game, Dickey, after his double in the second; Myril Hoag, after the other Yankee hit, with two out in the third, and Crosetti, who had reached second on a force play and Appling's error, with two out in the fifth. Only three batsmen faced Lee in the first, fourth, sixth, seventh, and eighth innings.

The Yankees led, 2 to 0, going into the eighth inning of the second game, on a homer by Red Rolfe and George Selkirk's triple. Then the Sox staged their eight run inning for victory, with plenty to spare.

Thus the Sox ended their very hot, then very moist road trip with a record of seven victories and five de-

MRS. THOMPSON KEEPS 4TH TITLE IN NATIONAL SWIM

Santa Barbara, Cal., July 24.—(AP)—Katherine Rawls Thompson of Florida swam to another record victory today as the National A. A. U. women's outdoor swimming meet came to a close.

The trim Miami Beach Swimming club star, cheered by an overflow crowd of 2,000 in the Biltmore Coral casino, was caught in 11 minutes 33.2 seconds to break the mark set by Lenore Knight Wingard in 1935. The victory was the fourth successful title defense for Mrs. Thompson.

The Los Angeles A. C. No. 1 team took the 300 meter medley relay championship, defeating by two lengths the defending champion trio of the Women's Swimming association of New York.

HACK'S 5TH HIT SCORES JURGES, BEATS HUBBELL

Reynolds Drives In Tying Run in 9th.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Stanley Hack.

Not an ordinary victory but one of those lightning change thrillers that wore into the evening and finally ended in the fifteenth inning. Mr. Stanley Hack hit a double with Bill Jurges on second and Jurges tore home with the run that swept the three game series from the champions, 5 to 4.

The winning run was the second bit of real heroics the Cubs revealed during the struggle. Going into the ninth they were apparently whipped by the pitching of King Carl Hubbell, who had come in earlier as a rescuer. But when the peerless southpaw needed only one out to end it all, Carl Reynolds exploded a single to drive in the tying run, carried over by none other than Hack, who a moment previous had peeled off the third of his five hits. Then the battle became a sterling argument between Hubbell and Bill Lee, who the day before had gone nine innings against the New Yorkers.

Pitchers Come and Go.

Until Hubbell took charge in the seventh and Lee in the ninth, pitchers had fared none too well. The Giants knocked out Larry French in the sixth with three runs for a 4 to 2 lead. One of these runs was forced over by Clay Bryant, who remained to the end of the eighth. The Cubs, although scoring only two runs off Bill Lohrman, one unearned, got rid of him after five innings. Harry Gumbert followed, but when he filled the bases with none out in the seventh his place was taken by Hubbell. And the master southpaw would have completed the inning scoreless if Mel Ott hadn't pulled a boner.

The fifteenth, which was to get Lee the run needed for his thirteenth victory of the season, opened with Cavarretta fanning. Bill Jurges, up seven times without a hit, finally came through with a teasing single which sneaked past his No. 1 enemy, Bartell. Jurges went to second on Herman's infield out. Hack was next. Three of his four previous hits, two off Hubbell, had been involved in scoring episodes. The Giants held a conference, the decision of which was to pitch to Hack.

The Payoff Wallop!

Hack, with two strikes against him, lined a double over third and Jurges crossed the plate.

French took care of three Giants in the first inning and this brought up Ott to open the second. Ott didn't hit a homer, but he did bounce a triple past Galan, who went too far with his idea that Lee could catch the ball off his shoe tops. Leiber immediately singled to left and Ott

90 MORE ENTER FINAL OF SWIM; FIELD COMPLETE

Championships at Stake Next Sunday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The field of qualifiers for the ten 100 yard free style championship races next Sunday at the Diversey beach lagoon was completed yesterday when ninety boys and girls passed their tests in the final sectional meets in Whealan pool and in California park pool.

One hundred and eighty-two now are eligible for the Chicagoland swimming finals, the others having received their gold qualifying medals in the races Saturday in Cermak pool and Sherman park pool. The tests in Whealan pool yesterday attracted the largest number of contestants of the four sections and fifty-two boys and girls were qualified there. Thirty-eight were awarded qualifying medals at California park.

Ten Lane Course in Lagoon.

All contestants must report next Sunday at Diversey beach lagoon at 1:30 p. m. to receive their racing numbers. The first of the semi-finals in class A for boys 11 and 12 years of age will start at 2 o'clock. The Chicago park district officials will arrange a ten lane course in the lagoon and the finals will be contested over a straightaway. In the trials the swimmers had to make at least one turn. Letters of instructions will be mailed the swimmers this week.

Swimmers from Bloomington, Ill.; Kenosha, Wis.; St. Joseph, Mich.; Gary, Ind.; Elgin, Ill.; St. John's summer camp, Delafield, Wis., and other midwestern cities, as well as from several Chicago parks and pools, qualified yesterday. The Lake Shore Athletic club, Beilfuss Natatorium, Lincoln-Belmont Y. M. C. A., Medinah club, Independence park, Blackhawk park and the Lake Shore Country club will be represented next Sunday. The Lake Shore A. C. girls' team, on the basis of preliminary tests, seems to have an excellent chance to retain the team championship trophy won last year.

Betty Wyle Outstanding.

Betty Wyle, Lake Shore Country club, who won the class D girls' race in Whealan pool with a time of 1:12, is outstanding in this class. She won the class D championship two years ago.

Donal Ross, another of the younger stars, a son of Norman Ross, former Olympic champion, qualified for the class B finals when he won the first heat in this division in Whealan pool. Best time for the boys in class C was registered by Robert Amundsen of Lake Shore, who swam 100 yards in 1:00.6.

The cards submitted yesterday by Guldahl and Lloyd Mangrum were the best ever turned in for a thirty-six hole round on the No. 4 course, Olympia's pride. Last year, in the national amateur qualifying round, Paul Leslie of Louisiana State, shot a 69—70—139 for the previous record. Yesterday Mangrum pitched a 69—68—137 and then Guldahl bettered that with a 68—68—136.

Guldahl Gains Early.

Snead, yielded two shots to Guldahl on the first two afternoon holes, getting only a par at the first and finding a trap at the second. Sam was in the rough at the seventh and eighth, but still got his pars. He rolled home a twelve footer at the twelfth, ten footers at the fourteenth and sixteenth, and then caught the rough at the seventeenth and eighteenth.

Guldahl had one of the toughest putting rounds that can befall a golfer. He chalked up two birdies and sixteen pars, and on nearly all of the latter he was putting for birdies which refused to click. One eight footer fell at the first and another from six feet dropped at the eighteenth.

Metz was over the second green, but got down a ten footer at the fourth and was around the turn in thirty-five, even par. The rough cost him a shot at the fifteenth, and he three putted the home green.

Rich Futurity to Close Meet at Arlington

Arlington Park's thirty day race meeting swings into its final week today with some of the nation's leading thoroughbreds pointing for the grand climax on Saturday, when the $50,000 Futurity and the $5,000 added Arlington handicap are scheduled.

Included in the Futurity field will be two of the costliest yearlings of the 1937 sales. Warren Wright will place his chief reliance on Temulac, for which he paid $26,000 at Saratoga last August. Mrs. John Hertz plans to send her Gala Hour, for which she paid $25,000, after the gold and glory of the Futurity. Wright likely will send out his Calumet Red as a running mate for Temulac.

Mars Entry Is Strong.

Mrs. Ethel V. Mars, who won the 1936 Futurity with Case Ace and earned a dead heat for first place with Tiger last year, will be represented by a powerful entry of Up The Creek, No Competition, and On Location.

If fifteen go to the post in the Futurity the gross value will be $50,205. The winner will receive $36,110, with $6,000 for second, $3,000 for third, and $1,500 for fourth. Breeders of the placed horses will receive: Winner, $1,500, second horse, $750, and third horse, $250.

The Futurity was inaugurated in 1932 and won by Ladysman. Then followed Far Star in 1933, Toro Nancy in 1934, Grand Slam in 1935, Case Ace in 1936, with Tiger and Teddy's Comet running a dead heat last year.

These Are Good Horses.

The mile and a quarter Arlington Handicap will draw a formidable field of the best cup horses.

Included in the field will be Mrs. Emil Denemark's War Minstrel, which holds recent decisions over War Admiral and Seabiscuit; Warren Wright's Bull Lea, Edward W. Duffy's Sir Jim James and Grey Gold, Louise J. Hickman's Arab's Arrow, C. E. Davison's Chance Ray, and others.

Cubs Leave for Brooklyn; Open Series Tomorrow

The Cubs started eastward last night, their plan for leaving today having been abandoned. They open against the Dodgers tomorrow at Brooklyn with Charley Root in charge of the pitching. The second game of the Dodger series will be a night affair on Wednesday.

Although the Cubs gained on the Giants by yesterday's victory they lost ground to the first place Pirates, who took a double-header from the Bees. The Cubs are five and one-half games behind the leaders and one and one-half back of the second place Giants.

feats, and with the distinction of having not lost a series.

FIRST GAME

The White Sox devoted the first three innings of the first game to being disappointed. In this span they made three singles and a double and drew a pass but made no runs, whereas the Yankees made two runs in the second inning though held to one hit.

In the first Berger opened with a single and Kreevich walked with one down. Radcliff and Appling whiffed. Owen led off the second with a single. Then there were three easy outs. Berger led off the third with another single, and, after Steinbacher had fanned, stopped at third on Kreevich's double to left. Radcliff bounced to Gehrig, whose throw to Dickey got Berger at the plate. Appling bounced to Gehrig.

Berger Drops One.

Here's what happened in that Yankee second: Berger dropped Di Maggio's fly rather deep in right and it went for a two base error. Gehrig tapped a gentle roller straight at Lee, who slipped as he started to throw to third, where he apparently had Di Maggio sunk. The ball went past Owen. Di Maggio scoring and Gehrig reaching second. Dickey dropped a double on the right foul line, scoring Gehrig. Powell, Gordon and Gomez failed to get the ball out of the infield.

SECOND GAME

Scoring in the second game got under way with Rolfe's seventh homer which led off the home fourth inning. It was the second hit off Stratton, Dickey having singled with two out in the second. Selkirk opened the fifth with a triple to right center and scored on Gordon's fly to Kreevich.

The only offensive work done by the Sox against Ruffing in the first five innings were a single with which Radcliff opened the second inning, only to be backed up with three infield putouts, and a flurry in the fourth which was squelched by misguided base running.

Ruffing Is Injured.

Ruffing injured his right elbow pitching in the sixth and Murphy was the Yankee pitcher at the start of the seventh. He retired the side on three infield outs.

Murphy wasn't so fortunate in the eighth. He started the session by walking Owen. Kuhel doubled to left, Owen stopping at third. Rosenthal batted for Rensa and walked, filling the bases. Walker batted for Stratton and singled to center, scoring Owen and Kuhel with the tying runs. Berger singled off Murphy's glove, Rosenthal scoring and Walker taking third. Sundra replaced Murphy and Steinbacher singled to right, scoring Walker and Berger.

Steinbacher should have been out when he sneaked to second on a cut-off play, but was safe when Crosetti dropped Rolfe's relay. Kreevich walked and the runners advanced on Radcliff's sacrifice. Appling bounced to Gehrig, whose throw to Dickey headed off Steinbacher. In the run-down, however, Steinbacher got around Dickey and when Sundra failed to cover the plate Steinbacher scored, Kreevich reached third, and Appling second. Owen flied to Di Maggio, Kreevich scoring.

The Yanks made one run off Whitehead in the eighth on Hoag's pinch single, Steinbacher's error, and a single by Rolfe.

LASKER RETIRES AS LORD-THOMAS AD AGENCY HEAD

Don Francisco Will Be Successor.

The retirement of Albert D. Lasker as president of Lord & Thomas, advertising agency, was disclosed yesterday when he announced that Don Francisco had been elected to succeed him.

Albert D. Lasker.

Lasker, prominent Republican and a former chairman of the United States shipping board, is the principal owner of Lord & Thomas.

Don Francisco.

Francisco, who has been associated with Lord & Thomas for twenty-four years, has been its executive vice president in charge of the Pacific coast offices since 1921. Beginning Oct. 1 he will be located in New York, which will become the agency's headquarters. Francisco took part in the campaign in 1934 that defeated Upton Sinclair in the race for governor of California.

Lasker's career with the agency has extended over forty years. He was appointed chairman of the United States shipping board by President Harding in 1921 and held the post two years. He formerly was a stockholder in the Cubs baseball team, but sold his interests to the late William Wrigley Jr. in 1925. He has donated large sums to the University of Chicago clinics.

The management personnel and facilities of Lord & Thomas' local offices will remain unchanged. The reelection of Sheldon R. Coons, New York, and David M. Noyes, Chicago, as executive vice presidents was announced yesterday. Other officers were reëlected.

Steel Buying Rises, but Lags Behind Output

Steel buying has shown definite improvement but at a slower rate than the rise in production rates would indicate, the magazine Steel said yesterday. Operations last week were estimated at 36 per cent of the nation's steel making capacity, a rise of 4 percentage points for the week.

An important factor in the boost in production rates in the Chicago and Birmingham districts lately has been the Southern railway's order for steel for 5,550 freight cars, the trade journal said. Chicago operations rose 1.5 points to 34 per cent last week. The Birmingham rate climbed 8 points to 50 per cent of capacity.

Scrap prices continued strong in all districts. Increases at Chicago and eastern Pennsylvania boosted Steel's scrap composite 42 cents to $13.50 a ton, the highest since February.

It was announced in Buffalo, N. Y., yesterday that the production rate there will rise again today when Republic Steel lights a third open harth. This will bring the Buffalo steel rate up to 37½ per cent of capacity.

EXTENSION ASKED ON NICKEL PLATE $15,000,000 NOTES

Cleveland, O., July 24.—(AP)—The Nickel Plate railroad today asked holders of $15,000,000 three year, 6 per cent notes to extend them for three years beyond Oct. 1, when the principal is due.

"Unless this proposal is accepted by the holders of substantially all of the notes, a reorganization of the company under section 77B of the bankruptcy act is inevitable," George D. Brooke, president, advised the holders in a letter.

Six per cent interest would continue on the extended notes, if their extension is approved by stockholders and ratified by the interstate commerce commission.

NORTH AMERICAN TWELVE MONTH NET 16 MILLIONS

The North American company and its subsidiaries yesterday reported consolidated income of $16,212,549, equal to $1.68 a share on North American stock, for the twelve months ended June 30. This was a decline from the $19,076,402, or $2.01 a share, in the twelve months ended June 30, 1937.

The Union Carbide and Carbon corporation yesterday reported second quarter net income of $3,721,724, equal to 41 cents a share. This compared with $4,209,333, or 47 cents a share, for the first three months of 1938, and $10,505,140, or $1.18 a share for the June quarter a year ago.

I. B. C. to Acquaint Dealers with Aims of Maloney Act

Washington, D. C., July 24.—[Special.]—A committee was named today by B. Howell Griswold Jr., chairman of the Investment Bankers Conference, Inc., to conduct an educational program aimed at acquainting investment bankers and security dealers throughout the country with the objectives of the Maloney act. This is a new law regulating the investment banking business.

Eastern Rail Coach Fare Increase Put in Effect

A half-cent a mile increase in coach fares of eastern railroads went into effect at 12:01 a. m. today for an experimental period of 18 months. The rate was increased from 2 cents a mile to 2.5 cents. The interstate commerce commission granted the increase in June. The carriers estimated the new rate would bring them an additional $45,000,000 a year.

Everyday Economics

An Example of Hedging.

One of the commonest examples of "hedging" against price changes involves the operator of a country grain elevator. He is satisfied with his income from the storage service and does not want to speculate. But he must protect himself from possible loss which would result if the price, say, of wheat declined while he stored it.

He hedges in the following way: Suppose that he buys from a farmer 10,000 bushels of wheat in July at 60 cents a bushel. When he makes this purchase he hedges by selling a futures contract for September delivery of 10,000 bushels on the Chicago Board of Trade for 60 cents. His futures sale has offset the cash purchase.

[Actually, the futures price would be higher than the cash price, because of two factors: the cost of "carrying" the wheat, which is taken into account in the futures quotation, and the freight cost for shipping the wheat from the country market to Chicago. The differential does not, however, change the principle of hedging.]

Now, suppose that in September, when he ships the 10,000 bushels that he bought from the farmer, the price of wheat has declined to 50 cents. He sells the wheat he has stored, losing 10 cents a bushel on it. At the same time, however, he buys a futures contract on the Board of Trade for 10,000 bushels at approximately 50 cents, canceling his previous futures sale. He has then made a profit of 10 cents a bushel in futures, offsetting the loss on his cash transactions.

If the price of wheat had gone up 10 cents from July to September, he would have made 10 cents a bush.l profit on cash dealings, but would have lost 10 cents in futures and retained his profit from the handling service.

Heavy Industry Lags Despite 'Priming'

Here is an illustration of how government spending, while helping to buoy up consumers' goods industries in the last few years, has failed to revive heavy industries which produce capital goods. Revival of heavy industries awaits renewal of flow of private capital, but owners of such capital are reluctant to put their money to work because of uncertainties resulting from administration's financial policies and its attitude toward private enterprise. (Figures from Standard Statistics, Inc.)

Ruins of False Booms Strew Business Trail

The people who buy such goods from the "heavy" industries are usually themselves producers of other goods. When they buy they usually commit themselves to an enterprise which will take a long time to pay out. They cannot buy if they do not foresee an opportunity to make a reasonable profit over a period of years.

They, as owners, cannot take the risk if they find that the odds are too heavily stacked against the prospect of a reasonable profit. Nor can they buy if they cannot persuade investors to lend them the money with which to finance their undertaking. The investors, in turn, have the same interest in possible profits, because if profits are too uncertain their bonds are unsafe.

Enterpriser, Investor Hold Key.

Thus, the enterpriser—the fellow who buys the products of the "heavy" industries—and the investor who lends him the money with which to do it, hold the key to the situation with which business has been struggling for the last nine years.

The enterpriser and the investor have been the moving forces behind the tremendous industrial development of the United States during the last century and a half. They have provided the spark which has created in this country the highest standard of living the world has ever known. They have created the jobs, paid the wages and made more and cheaper goods.

Unafraid of Ordinary Loses.

What has chilled the enthusiasm of the enterpriser and the investor? What has made them reluctant to embark on new ventures? It certainly cannot be the fear of loss through the ordinary risks that exist in any business undertaking, because American business men and investors always have taken long risks. Records over a long period show that nearly nine-tenths of all business ventures have failed. There always have been such failures. What new elements of risk have been injected, so discouraging that both the enterpriser and the investor prefer to hoard their cash rather than put it to work?

Is it taxation of income and estates, which makes the chance of success too small in comparison with the chance of failure?

Is it government regulation, which has made profitable operation impossible in heavily regulated industries?

Harassment by Government.

Is it the harassment by government bureaus and commissions, which has discouraged would-be employers?

Is it the growth of radical labor unions and the prevalence of sitdown strikes?

Is it fear of the ultimate consequences of the government's financial policies?

To what extent is American business affected by events abroad—by the threat of wars, the arbitrary restriction of international trade, foreigner's defaults on public and private debts owed us and repeated changes in the value of currencies?

These matters will be discussed in detail in succeeding articles.

June Motor Freight Gains Over May; Below Year Ago

Investors' Guide

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Crown Cork and Seal.

Investors' Guide: What do you think of investment in securities of the Crown Cork and Seal company? —J. T.

Answer: Crown Cork and Seal company has long been a leading manufacturer of metal bottle caps and other metal and cork closures for containers. Within the last two years it has entered the business of manufacturing cans and glass containers. As a result of these new enterprises, sales rose 59 per cent in 1937 as compared with 1936. A further rise of sales was reported in the first quarter of this year.

Crown Cork bought the Acme Can company, a small Philadelphia can company in January, 1936. About $6,150,000 was spent in expanding its plant and machinery. Subsequently the wholly owned Crown Can company was organized and all assets of Acme were transferred to the new company. Crown now makes beer cans, packers' sanitary cans, general line cans, and other metal containers.

Operations of the Crown Can company resulted in a loss of $1,000,000 in 1937. Of this loss, $300,000 represented special writeoffs. Heavy expenses were incurred in connection with development of the business. The first unit of the glass division of the parent company was put in operation last year.

Crown Cork and Seal also makes agglomerate cork disks, rods, plugs, sheets, and blocks for use in its own manufacturing operations and for sale to others. It also makes machinery used in its type of business and engages in related enterprises.

Despite higher sales, the company's net income declined in the first quarter of this year to $547,288, or 81 cents per common share, from $549,754, or 82 cents a share, in the corresponding period of 1937. Fixed charges, depreciation charges and taxes were higher this year. Net income was $1,624,598, or $2.16 a common share, in 1937; $2,332,048, or $3.66, in 1936; $1,880,753, or $4.02 a share on a smaller number of shares, in 1935, and $1,284,008, or $2.41, in 1934. Loss was $21,332 in 1932, only loss of the depression years, and net income in 1929 was $925,293, or $1.95 a share.

The company had 225,000 shares of $2.25 no par cumulative preferred stock and 517,601 shares of no par common outstanding on March 31. Directors passed the regular 50 cent dividend on the common at a meeting May 5.

The company recently sold through a syndicate $10,000,000 of 10 year 4½ per cent sinking fund debentures.

RFC PITS BANKS AGAINST EACH OTHER ON LOANS

Devises a Lever for Loosening Credit.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation yesterday announced a new policy by which it will, in effect, pit competitor banks against each other, using this as a whip for forcing an expansion in business loans.

When a loan applicant approved by the RFC is turned down by his local bank an RFG agent will contact the bank and try to persuade it to participate in the loan. If it refuses the RFC agent then will contact a competitor bank.

Notice Served by Jones.

The policy was outlined by Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, in a statement in which he served notice on all the nation's banks that the plan had been decided upon.

The statement follows:

"In connection with his recent letter to all banks, asking their extensive coöperation in making business and industrial loans, Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, states that from the number of applications being received daily there is still a substantial demand for credit in many sections of the country.

Asks Managers to Act.

"He has requested RFC agency managers to contact the bank of each applicant with a view to securing its participation in the loan in the belief that the banks can make or participate in a great many of the loans.

"Where the applicant's bank will not participate RFC agents will contact other banks in the applicant's vicinity in an effort to secure coöperation in making the loan."

Jones is a Houston, Tex., banker. His bank's recent statement showed it has been reducing loans.
